PALLADIUM
Volume 80
Troy State University
Troy, Alabama 36082

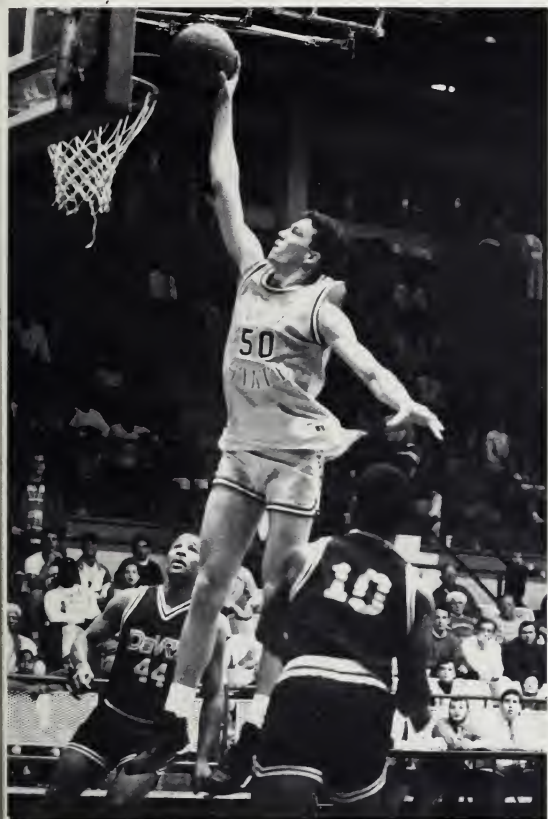

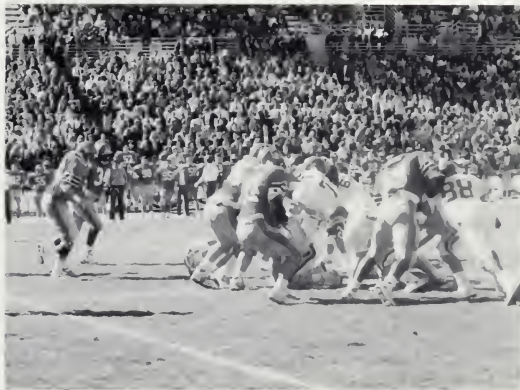

Although the size of Troy is small, one might be a little surprised to find the diversity that is present at the university. The administrators seek to offer as many academic majors and extracurricular and academic activities as possible to attract students from all over the world. The student body is a motley array of personalities and talents, each seeking to obtain a quality education. They are aided by the faculty to secure this education. Teaching is the job and the priority of the classroom instructors.

Speaking on Earth Day, Dr. Hawkins stressed the importance of caring about the world in which we live.

Antjuan Marsh takes a short break to get a drink on the sidelines.

The life of the student is different for each individual. Athletes, international students, Greeks, independents and future politicians all combine their talents to make TSU excellent.

Athletes spend much time on the court, field or course either in practice or while playing the games. Most athletes love the sport in which they choose to participate. To them it is more than just a hobby. For many it is the way they pay for their education. Athletes must be dedicated students in order to spend so much time practicing and playing and maintaining their grades.

Many students use the lagoon, especially during spring quarter. On any given day, driving by the lagoon, one may see students lounging on the grass or using the dock as a sunning spot. Others have picnics or go fishing. The lagoon is also used for canoeing and sailing which are both offered as a one hour credit physical education class. Greek week participants may also find themselves in the lagoon racing and having fun.

Top: Brian Arnold and Susan Keil make good use of the dock at the lagoon. Bottom: Canoeing across the lagoon during Greek week events are Sarita Humes and Carla Hines.

Picking up a refrigerator at Pace is just a part of the job that Terry Owens and Danny Hall face.

The independents are a major asset. Many independents have jobs on and off campus. They, with the Greeks, support TSU in sporting events and participate in other activities on campus. One of those activities includes a group of men who go by the title "Auxiliary Workers". These men pick up and deliver refrigerators, work the concession stands and help at whatever task needs to be done.

Right: Three of the international students, Carl von Hoersten, Benzing Thinley and Sohail Agboatwala, play a game in the lobby of the International House. Bottom: Officers of the College Republicans, Cam Ward, Jay Evans and Gregg Norquist discuss plans and get organized before the meeting.

The international students contribute in a variety of ways. People at TSU may wonder why so many international students attend this university. The answer: Excellence. Here they can receive a quality education and find out how the American culture is different from their own. One aspect of the American way of life that is prominent at Troy State is politics. Anyone can run for an office in the Student Government Association, as well as College Republicans. The entire student body has the privilege of voting.

These ladies not only work for TSU, they are also students. Through a beneficial program, members of the staff can take one class per quarter for no charge. Bottom right: Dorm residents relax on the bed for an enjoyable night watching television and chatting with one another. They are Emily Jones, Haylie Smith, Dyanna Henderson and Misty Brown.

David Turk, a junior from Panama City performed many great feats in the area of music. He wrote a piece called "Uncle Ralph's Rules" which is being played in P.C. David was not only involved in music groups at TSU, but played in two bands in his hometown. After graduation with a music education degree, David aspires to play the trumpet professionally.

Many different things combine to make a university excellent. The people make the difference. Without faculty, staff, administration and a wide variety of students, the university would be lacking. However, Troy State University prides itself on quality education and being excellent. One can see from the numerous activities and programs available that even though Troy is small, TSU has a great deal to offer for everyone.

Sporting events spark student spirit.

COLLEGE FRIEND SHIPS ~

63 We're both sopranos in the gospel choir. We always help each other — we depend on each other. She's either singing in my ear or I'm singing in hers." Like Patrice Darden and her friends in the gospel choir, students at Troy found that college invariably fosters lasting friendships. What drew particular people together? Shared interests, shared classes, or often shared backgrounds brought them together. Erik Bennett commented on his closest friendships. "We have known each other since the 8th grade and now we're in the same fraternity. We're real different yet just alike in a lot of ways. Me and Corbitt are the straight guys in the group. We try to keep Tim in line." Besides sharing a fraternity, many students who shared a room became close. Sharon Baxter was one such student.

"My closest friend now is my roommate. We're each other's counselor and we're there to share one another's problems." Janna Westbrook said that the element which made her friendship with Lisa Sirmon special was their common faith in Jesus Christ. "She accepts my weaknesses and always points me back to God — our friendship is a challenge to me . . . We just have so much fun! Sometimes in the mornings before class we would get up and have Coconut Cream coffee and read our Bibles together. Her life exemplifies Jesus and that's how I want mine to be."

Dreams

From youth almost everyone has had dreams of what they would be when they grew up. Perhaps a performer, or a famous athlete, or a doctor. Then they go off to college in hopes of making those dreams a reality. But Troy State is no Nashville, and the percentage of students who leave this campus to make a worldwide name for themselves is no doubt tiny. Still, on this small southern campus dreams are not crushed, only shaped and solidified. From day one students are confronted with views which shake their foundations and glimpses of the long road ahead which prompts much re-evaluation of present ideals. Runners and players find that they have — or do not have — what it takes. Pre-professional students realize that the program is not as hard as they feared, or perhaps it is just too hard. Would-be teachers who have a heartfelt desire to help others find that the salary and headaches are not worth it, or on the other hand, do not matter. The changes in a student's major are often clear gauges of the changes within himself. Through it all: the ten page papers written at 3 a.m. with much agony mixed with satisfaction, the classroom discussions which inject doubt into former convictions, the professors whose zeal for their subject sparks a student's own vision . . . through each aspect of the learning process students form their own ideals. And through all the long looks at their life, they form their own definitions of success. Ironically, as a person grows, they realize that the things which they once equated with "success" are not necessarily what it is all about. It is the inner qualities which, if developed, make life meaningful and successful. Truly, college is an incubator of self-discovery unlike any other place. And it really makes no difference how renowned the college is. "You get as much out of it as you put into it," the adage goes. So as we build our dreams, alterations are inevitable. They usually are for those who would put feet to their plans. Yet to be true to ourselves is exactly what was expected all along.

Enjoy It While You Can

Here are the most extraordinary years you'll ever spend

Well meaning students like Marvin Sexton doze during studies.

Options abound on any given day: sleep in, dress bummy, cut class, take a road trip, spend two hours talking in the cafeteria or Adams Center, stay out late, eat as much as desired, and on and on. University years—whether two, four, or six—are filled with such opportunities. Even the major decisions are up to the whim of the student: what to major in, what organizations to join, what friends to choose. With all this freedom, why would anyone complain? As one graduate said, “Real life is tough. While you’re in college, enjoy it for all it’s worth.”

But lest the college experience is made to look like a big playground, it must be emphasized that students are in one of the most stressful undertakings of their lives. Besides papers and projects, there are daily studies to keep up with. Students who have jobs or play sports or are involved in some other time-consuming activity must be adept time managers if they are to stay above the heap and earn decent grades. Many Troy State students have to juggle school with their family and job. Those in this situation find little time for diversion.

Still, those who do have time to go fishing or spend an afternoon taking a nap probably never truly realize the joy of such youthful days until it's too late. Unwittingly, they fall into the cycle of wishing. In high school, it's “When I get to college the fun will really start.” But in the thick of college, it's “When I graduate I'll really start living.” Then, “When I have a family my life will be complete,” and later, “When I retire I can do all the things I've always wanted to do.” Soon, what is left?

And so for now they squeeze every ounce of happiness possible out of their years here, for there will never be another time quite like college.

Greek week—the epitome of the unique college attitude in which one can get away with just about anything.

Living in the dormitory became quite an experience for many people. Sharing a small room with another person taught many valuable lessons during the year. Since many students who came to Troy did not know anyone, the experience of meeting a new roommate was both a frightening and fun moment.

A roommate who started off as being a total stranger often turned into a life long friend. Wendy Smith believed that meeting friends was always an advantage of living in the dorm. "I enjoy living in the dorm because I've been able to meet a lot of people that otherwise I would not have been able to meet." There were always opportunities to meet people in the dorms who became real neighbors. Laura Elmore enjoyed her stay in the dorm. "I think it's nice having all of your friends close together. When I get bored all I have to do is walk down the hall and visit somebody."

For many, the arrival to college started a new growth of independence. Many student's first experience of washing and ironing clothes occurred in the dormitory. But since quarters were scarce, it was often a weekly task to save them for doing laundry. Quarters were also used in the game rooms and coke machines.

There were endless recreational possibilities found in the dorms. Many enjoyed watching television together in the lobby or in a neighbor's room. Card games and board games were great to pass the time with friends. Action and mischief always went hand in hand in the dorm scene.

Shane Vickery found entertainment in playing practical jokes. "It's fun to walk down the hall and change people's television stations with my remote control. They usually don't understand what's happening to their TV's. It's really funny... People steal towels on one floor. One guy had to take the shower curtain down and wrap it around him to walk down the hall to his room." When asked about the most memorable event that has occurred in Shackelford Hall Luanne Nettles recalled that it was "My RA Emily running down the halls at midnight yelling 'HELP!'. She had a broom in her hand and was running from a bat that had gotten in the dorm."

Except for the bat episode, for Emily Overstreet, living in the dorm was full of advantages. Being an RA allowed her to meet new people. "I enjoy the convenience of being close to everything and the friendships I've made with all the girls who live on my hall."

Chancellor's Inauguration

There was an air of excitement at TSU all day Friday, October 12, 1990. It was a day set aside for the official inauguration of Jack Hawkins, Troy State's eighth chancellor since the University's beginnings in 1887. Although Chancellor Hawkins had assumed the duties of the position since September 1, 1991, Inauguration Day was geared toward the students, giving them a chance to be involved in the landmark step of TSU progress.

The day's activities were kicked off with an informal prayer service at 7:15 am in Sorrell chapel. As students finished their morning classes, they headed straight for Shackelford quad for the Inaugural Ball; a "ball" featuring picnic lunches by Marriott and a special performance by Contemporary Christian musician Amy Grant. Grant, a personal friend of the Hawkins', performed several of her well known songs for the lively crowd of students and ended her mini-concert with an electrifying number sung together with the TSU Gospel Choir. "For two voices on completely opposite ends of the gospel spectrum to come together like that was not only a statement about faith, but it sounded awesome!" commented

Mark Cady.

The inauguration ceremony followed at 2:30 in Smith Hall auditorium. There, students, faculty, alumni, the University's Board of Trustees, and Gov. Guy Hunt welcomed Chancellor Hawkins into the TSU system.

A lovely reception was waiting for the crowd on the main quadrangle after the inauguration. Music by the Sound of the South concert band graced the evening and listeners remembered the words of Chancellor Hawkins, delivered in his acceptance speech. "We must reach for quality in all we do, and what we do first and foremost is teach. . . . We are beginning our journey into the 21st century.

Free. For all Troy State Students who needed special assistance in virtually any area, not only did Student Development Support Services offer help, they offered it free of charge to students. The goal of SDSS was to provide academic support and counseling and at the same time conduct research and develop programs to improve those services. With the various centers making up SDSS receiving over 12,500 visits in one year, and the records of student improvement, it was obvious that SDSS was helping students blossom during their collegiate experience.

Computerworks. Twenty quality computers were just waiting to be utilized by industrious students and faculty in Wright 110, Computerworks. With numerous programs and convenient hours, perfect documents were just minutes away.

Counseling. Conditionally admitted students, all undecided majors, and any student help could be assisted in counseling by programs like the DISCOVER career search, basic skills classes, and CAPP, all aimed for student improvement.

Reading and Writing Centers. Private tutors, interactive video, cassette tapes and much more was available in these centers to help students remove deficiencies from their writing, improve their vocabulary and comprehension, and sharpen test taking skills.

Natural Science Center. With more than 7,000 visits in one year, the NSC was definitely popular with students needing assistance in math and the sciences. One survey showed that students who utilized the NSC did so 24 times per quarter.

Additionally, Writing Across the Curriculum, Interactive Video, TSU Articulation (for assisting transfer students), and Student Support Services were available as part of SDSS.

College campuses are full of fads. They are seen everyday. Although some trends came and went, one remained popular season after season at Troy State University— t-shirts. Like other shirts, they were worn with Duckheads or blue jeans. But they were not just your average shirt. A t-shirt was different, specialized, created for a reason. Each shirt showed originality and creativity. They were found everywhere. Old and new, there must have been one made for every occasion.

Sororities and fraternities always found reasons to create new shirts in various colors and designs. Rush, formals, parties and swaps became the drawing board for new creations. The shirts served as mementos from social events. Kathy Wright believed that the popularity of the shirts among the Greeks was because "it displays the creativity of the different organizations on campus and helps establish unity among the Greeks. I think t-shirts will continue to be popular because most of the groups design unique shirts for different activities that they have at Troy State."

Although the Greeks were known for their many shirts, there were other non-Greek occasions that called for the making of a new t-shirt. Troy State's Homecoming, a popular annual event, was one such occasion in which a shirt was created that was popular with both Greek and independent students. During the war in the Persian Gulf, people all over the United States showed their support of U.S. troops by wearing yellow ribbons and displaying the American Flag. TSU students showed their support by buying up "Operation Desert Storm" t-shirts as fast as the SGA could order them. Laura McCullars believed the shirt was so popular because "it was a way for everyone to outwardly show both their support and appreciation for the troops, so loyally serving our country in the Persian Gulf."

"Troy State" shirts in various colors and designs were also available for the students. Many students shopped at the University Store for the latest attire with "TSU" printed on them. Some intramural groups even had their own original shirts which were worn during games and practices. Several Honor Societies also developed their own shirts with a design or Greek lettering. Independent, Greek, intramural— there were t-shirts available for everyone. No one could be excluded from the craze of the college t-shirt.

LINES

of the little pains and frustrations
college*

Every student experienced those little pains and frustrations of college life. The discouragement of walking all the way to the Adams Center only to find one's mail box empty, and the daily search for a parking space were constant pains, as well as those who live off campus being fined for a parking violation. Another common frustration for all students was long lines.

From the beginning to the end of the year, students were faced with long lines. Registering for the upcoming quarter was always a prolonged wait. If one was lucky, the registration process only took half an hour; but if not so lucky one might as well have prepared to spend the next two hours on their feet. Once registration was completed and the new quarter began it was time for new textbooks. The purchase of new books became another cause for long lines at the beginning of a quarter. At the end of each quarter the mad rush returned to the Text Book Center as students begrudgingly waited to sell their text books back for half the price they paid.

Those who received the privilege of having grants and loans also received the extra privilege of waiting in line. In order to receive their grant and loan each recipient had to visit the business office on a certain day, creating another long line and wait. Students found the twelve o'clock rush for Stewart Hall to propose a daily line both inside and outside of the cafeteria.

There were some lines that were not as frustrating as others, such as the one at the movies. The late movie normally drew in a larger crowd which entailed a longer wait for tickets, popcorn and a good seat. Also, students who were eager to receive a front row seat at the concerts did not mind standing in line, even if it meant camping out to be at the front of the line!

Waiting in line is not so bad when you have someone to talk to.

The line for the movie is always forming at Smith Hall on Wednesday nights.

Is it worth the wait? Students endure the heat to sell their books.

Grant and Loan Day always creates lines and chaos in the business office.

HOLIDAYS

What did TSU students do during those few times of the year set apart for being with dear ones or remembering hallowed events? For many the choice was obvious: pack the bags and go home to be with family. For others, necessity kept them at their jobs or expensive distance made it impossible to go home.

Not so with sophomore Jim Quinn. "I go home all the time. Two hours away is not that far—especially for Easter. We are really family oriented and this Easter we had a big family gathering at my grandparents'."

*From Halloween
to Easter,
holidays
mean being with loved ones*

Halloween, Valentine's Day and Easter are actually the only holidays which take place while school is in session. These dates are when many students head home, but for those who stay in Troy, there are multitudes of creative ways to celebrate. Dorms offer trick-or-treating and Greek organizations sponsor haunted houses for Halloween. Local florists are their busiest during Valentine's when en"couple"ment is everywhere, and new Spring clothes see the light as Easter church services are packed out.

Other universities envy Troy State's unique six-week break from Thanksgiving to New Years. Probably one of the average student's favorite things about Troy, this break gives them time to get a job as well as enjoy a big dose of rest from school. But not all TSU goers get to rest during these holidays. The football team usually has a playoff game left to play, the Collegiate singers give several Christmas concerts—as does the Band, and the faculty return to sift through paperwork and prepare for the flood of faces returning fresh with the New Year.

Foreign students have altogether different holiday situations. Since it is difficult to go home, they must find fellowship in Troy, usually with other foreign students. "Basically I'm Jewish," explained Sibylle Rabinowicz, a student who is Russian in blood, African in long-time home, and presently Swiss in passport. "But it's a little bit difficult in a Christian society to celebrate Jewish holidays." Sibylle celebrates Hannakuh at home (Switzerland) but not away from home. "I celebrate Christmas—for the presents! I have friends who are Christians so we have a social. I don't go to church; it's more like a get together. . . as for Easter? Well, I got a bunny. That's about it."

Sorrell Chapel serves as a sacred place for Catholic services, a small auditorium for various entertainers, and a quiet sanctuary for worshippers.

But Sibylle's situation is much different from that of Jennifer Nelson from Selma, Alabama who celebrates important holidays at home in the traditional Southern way. "We always have the family gathering with lots of food. I can't remember my favorite Christmas; they are all equally special."

Kyle Smith from Clanton recounts his favorite holiday as "the 4th of July—because we have about 50 or 60 people down at the river at our house and have a big barbeque. The only bad part is cleaning up after it's over."

No matter what the holiday, being with loved ones is the common denominator, whether throwing the last suitcase in the trunk and heading home for a turkey dinner or rushing into a dorm lobby full of Valentine's Day flowers—and hoping some of them have your name on them.

They come from All Over

From coast to coast many students have chosen Troy State University to further their education. During the academic year, students from Alaska, Canada, Maryland and Washington have called Troy, Alabama their home. But how does someone in these locations find out about TSU? Robin Butler from Fairbanks, Alaska learned about Troy through her guidance counselor and friends. "I talked to guidance counselors and told them I was interested in a small school. They pointed out Troy and told me that this is a real good school, it has a real good reputation academically and athletically. I also talked to people who had graduated from Troy and they said it is an excellent school, I'd have a good time and I could develop a personal relationship with my teachers on a one-to-one basis." Although many students have the option of whether or not to go home for the weekend, for Steve Barsby, who lives in Ontario, this is almost impossible. "I don't even really have a choice. It's just impossible for me to go home on the weekends. I figured it up one time that if I drove home, I could only spend eight hours at home and the rest of the time would be spent driving in order to be back in time for my class on Monday morning."

For Chad Deal, the biggest difference between Alabama and Maryland is the attitude of the people. "The first thing I noticed is that people say hello. It's really laid back here. . . it's the different type of attitude people have toward people. I like it a lot." Keith Bowen's only complaint is the weekends. "I like the knowledge I'm getting and the size of the classrooms. The weather is definitely a lot better down here. It doesn't rain as much here. In Washington when it rains, it rains day after day . . . it gets depressing. There's just not much to do here on the weekends because everyone goes home." For these students Christmas break is the only time they are able to return home. When Robin feels homesick she finds encouragement in her parents' voice. "On weekends and holidays and especially at Easter I felt it. I felt like I should have been sitting in church with my family at home, not here in Troy alone. On those kind of days I just call home and say 'Well I'm feeling a little homesick—I need a good pep talk.' After I talk to my mom and dad I feel great."

A whole new appreciation of college

Working Through

It's 4:30 a.m. and a student who is also an employee of a local fast food restaurant gets dressed in the dark so he won't wake his roommate. After a morning full of baking biscuits and refilling coffee he heads back to his apartment to get ready for classes. Elsewhere on campus a student has second thoughts about being a resident assistant when he has to deal with a violent fight in the dorm. One late night waitress wonders as she hurries to take another order when she will have time to do her World lit reading . . . and spend time with her sorority sisters, and work on that research project, and get a good night's sleep.

Many times the student working at the grocery store has thought of how ironic it is that while working so many hours in order to put himself through school, he is neglecting his very schoolwork because of his job.

Troy State University is probably one of the most inexpensive colleges in the south, even though tuition inches up each year. Yet for students in that crucial bracket who do not qualify for financial aid but whose parents can't spare the thousands, the only options are to try for a loan or scholarship—for which they may or may not qualify—or to get a job. And working might not be so bad, if that were the only extra-curricular activity in a student's day. But there are organizations to join and sports to play and friends to enjoy. The necessity of having to work definitely forces students to manage their time and inevitably instills within them a new appreciation for college.

Not all students feel deprived of having a full collegiate experience by having to work, however. Students who hold workstudy jobs, a form of financial aid in which students work a reasonable number of hours in a convenient on-campus location, find it to be just what they need. Kim Knight, a sophomore from Camp Hill, AL who works in the library said, "This job has helped me tremendously. If it were not for Workstudy I would not be able to attend school. It also provides interaction with other students and has helped me to learn more about the library, and to do that is to be a better student."

One of the best ways to pay Scholarships Galore

At a small town high school honors banquet, a student is granted the fifth annual Ala-Fla Homemakers Club scholarship for $50. Though it will not go very far in the thousands needed for the four or more years of college to come, every little bit helps. Scholarships are one of the best ways to pay, the money being gratis and the recognition being important for future reference. Troy State has a reputation for extending scholarships to students all over the United States who qualify in academic, leadership, athletic, and many other capacities. Ask almost any student who travelled across the country to attend TSU just why they chose this university, and the answer is likely to be "George C. Wallace Scholarship."

But there are many other scholarships as well. The Scholar's Award pays full tuition, room and board to high school and junior college students who have an ACT score of 30 and 3.7 GPA. The Chancellor's Award pays full tuition to students who have a 26 on the ACT and 3.5 GPA. Carol Casey said of her academic award, "Having this scholarship has enabled me to attend TSU with less financial strain. By not having to work over 15 hours per week, I have been able to devote more time to studying." Leadership awards are based on achievement in leadership positions in high school and junior college. State Youth Organization Presidents, State Junior Misses, as well as Senior class presidents, SGA presidents, and yearbook editors are all potentially eligible for leadership scholarships. Special scholarships offered through TSU include The Allen Cup Pre-Med Award and award for the outstanding graduate of an Alabama state junior college, The Gorgas Award for a finalist in the Gorgas Competition, TSU National Alumni Assn. Endowment Scholarships, which gives preference to eligible immediate family relations of TSU alumni, and the full tuition scholarship for Miss TSU. Various departments across the campus offer "participation" scholarships, such as athletics and band. In any case, monies are available to students. One only needs to know the right places to look.

ABROAD

*Seeing

England,

Perhaps for college credit, perhaps just for pleasure; whatever the reason enterprising students chose to leave home and see another part of the world, each experience was definitely unforgettable. Troy State, known for its many branches all over the world has adopted the catch-phrase "The sun never sets on Troy State University." In keeping with this visionary spirit, various professors offered several opportunities through the University in which students could experience first-hand the culture of other countries. The Oxford Summer Program, directed by Dr. James Day; an exchange program for business majors in Utrecht, Holland, initiated by Dr. Lawrence Lovik; the German-American Scholarship Exchange Program, directed by Mrs. Helen Hutto and Dr. Peter Howard; and French Culture on Location, directed by Dr. James Sherry were the four major overseas endeavors sponsored by TSU. But Troy State natives weren't the only ones to gain such experience. Numerous students from India, Japan, Central and South America—to name a few places—came to Troy State out of their own volition to receive college credit and invaluable experience. Still other students travelled abroad with non-university organizations or simply with friends or family, taking advantage of the stage of life in which one can do as they please if resources and responsibilities permit.

England. Anyone who took an English class under Dr. James Day could sense his passion for England and especially Oxford, where he earned his master's degree. Day started the Oxford Summer Program to give students the chance to experience Oxford University and earn credit at the same time. The program consisted of two weeks at Oxford University during which Day taught courses in British culture and Shakespeare to the students. Those participating in the program could enjoy being tourists as well as students since they were not restricted by rigid supervision. Upon returning to the States, participants could understand what Day meant when he said, "Studying at Oxford brings English literature alive . . . You also learn more about being an American while in London because you compare the two."

Holland. Four TSU business students laid the foundation for the first America-Holland business internship exchange during the summer of 1990. Alan Cutler, Cynthia Amerson, Kevin Parrish and Daryl Haupt, selected on the basis of interest and academic standards, were placed in businesses in Amsterdam and Utrecht to work on projects to help the businesses become more advanced. In return, four Dutch students from Newport University in Holland came to work in Troy businesses. Alan Cutler, a senior economics major from Dothan, said that working for a software multihouse corporation in Utrecht was the best experience and career preparation he could have asked for. "I developed a strategic 1 to 5 year plan. I had two bosses and I think they were very happy with me . . . overall, I felt very much at home."

France. During the summer of 1989 in France, the dollar was strong, the Louvre was re-opening, it was the Bicentennial of the Bastille and the 100th anniversary of the Eiffel Tower—a perfect time for Dr. James Sherry to take students on a study of "French Culture on Location." Besides 10 hours credit in French, students gained practice in the use of the language and 16 days full of taking in historical and artistic landmarks. Ashley Mann, a French and Drama major commented, "I saw how applicable things I've learned in college can be to real life, especially that this language I'm learning in class is actually what they speak. To me 'Je'taime' is a translation of 'I love you.' To them it is 'I love you'."

Germany. Alison Ohman exchanged settings with Carl von Hoersten in 1990-91 through the German-American Club. Members of this club were Americans and Germans interested in fostering friendly relations between the two countries. To qualify, Alison had to read, write, and speak German adequately and agree to return to TSU for one year after studying in Germany. She wrote of her experiences throughout the year. "I live and study in Bamberg, . . . a beautiful old town with many timber and plaster buildings. The University has 6,000 students . . . The war is the main topic in every conversation.

Numerous times I have been asked why President Bush responded or reacted in a certain way. From the way the question is asked it seems like they think I have direct access to the White House!"

Kenya. Twelve Troy State students and four Valdosta students spent months preparing to be a part of the Campus Outreach International Summer Project in 1990. The team worked with a Christian organization on two small college campuses in Mombasa with the purpose of establishing a Christian ministry there that would multiply itself even after the team left. Though they tried not to appear as tourists, the group got an extraordinary look at everyday life in East Africa. "Imagine 40 or 50 men, women, and children with intricately painted arms and feet, bright colored wraps and head pieces, cymbals and tambourines and drums, dancing down a narrow dirt street in an Indian neighborhood," said Mandy Merrill. "As I stood there staring at this wedding celebration, I remember being in awe of what I was seeing, yet somehow knowing that inside, we weren't that much different at all."

Alabama. Students that came to Troy State to study from distant places also gained real life experience abroad. Their reasons for coming were as varied as their nationalities, but several commonalities remained, their desire for top quality education and adventuresome spirit to name a few. The Friends of Foreign Students Program was introduced in 1990 to help them feel welcome and give them real insight into American family life. About 46 students from 25 nations were assigned to families in Troy. Patricia Garcia from Bolivia said of the program, "Many of these students don't really understand American ways of doing things, and having a family to go to for help is really encouraging."

Wherever the cross-cultural experience may have been, any student would agree that though costly, it was well worth it. Ashley Mann spoke for all when she summed up her trip to France. "Going over becomes a time of self discovery when you are taken out of your comfortable surroundings to discover who you are." □

In virtually every class at TSU there is a face or faces who are more mature, more resolute, probably older and much more aware of the importance of a college education than the carefree post-high schoolers all around them. They have come to Troy State for many different reasons: to get the degree they never had a chance to get, to start working on a new career, to press on in the college work that has taken them 10 years to complete at night, etc. For whatever reason, the convenience of going to college left with the years and now it is sheer determination that not only gets them in, but often makes them the best students in their classes.

Richard Lucas from New Brockton, AL chose to start his second career at Troy State because of the location. After years in retail sales, he "felt a call from the Lord. He has guided me to be in the ministry of the United Methodist Church through other people and through his Word." Richard is taking classes in Psychology in preparation for his theological training in a Methodist seminary in Atlanta. "It has been extremely hard, but the Lord has blessed me.

Determination

"I already have the responsibility of a full time church plus a wife and a five year old son, and now full time school. But I have kept my grades up and things are going good at church and home too."

Maria Morandini Hiatt left Italy four days before her final high school exams to marry a U.S. military man. "Not having a high school degree always bothered me, so after the kids were pretty much on their own I decided to go back to school. At that time I was 40 years old. I promised myself that by the time I was 45 I would have a degree—a certificate to teach languages, which is my love." Despite the hassle of military moves, Maria will graduate on time with honors. "Now I am 44 and my degree will be effective the 9th of August of this year. By Christmas I will have done what I set out to do."

And the stories go on. While inexperienced students look with wonder on these mature students, and think it must be extremely difficult to juggle all the responsibilities, they often forget that they do not have the social side of college to worry about so much; it's no longer needed.

The 1991 Honors Convocation was held in Smith Hall on the 20th of May. During the night various students and faculty were recognized for their academic achievements. Dr. David Dye served as host. The guest speaker was Dr. Ladell Payne, President of Randolph-Macon College located in Ashland, Virginia. The winners of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award and the Ingalls Award were announced prior to the speaker's address. The Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award is annually given to one male and one female graduate student and one non-student. Samuel Westmoreland, Nina Jo Webb and Dr. Gertrude Schroeder were the proud recipients of this prestigious award. Spiritual qualities such as dedication, honesty and compassion were evaluated in selecting these winners. The Ingalls Award, which is the highest teaching award at Troy State, was given to Dr. Perry Castelli. Dr. Castelli received a plaque and one thousand dollars with this award. He served as the assistant professor of education and also as the coordinator of professional studies.

Seniors

Their perspective is unique. Only a graduating senior can see so clearly into the big world while still having one foot on the campus. Here nine randomly selected seniors share their thoughts on Troy State and college in general.

Patricia Garcia Nikalasson. "Overall, I think that I have gained a lot of knowledge here and that I am prepared for whatever's next. I have had good instructors in my management and general studies classes who have required me to work hard and always do my best, even though sometimes it was frustrating because of my language skills, which were not up to standard at the beginning. Just the fact of coming from South America was a challenge that I have overcome. If I go back, I believe I can have a good job, and if I stay here I think I can do the same. I never once thought about transferring. I was really happy from the day I got here."

Gregg Norquist. "When people go to college, like myself, you go with your own ideals and preconceptions that have been given to you by your parents and the neat thing about college is that you get under the tutelage of professors who don't try to squelch your ideas, but they try to expound on them. They try not to only show you the limited scope, but they try to expand your boundaries. Then you will come to learn and accept what others believe, and even though you don't agree with them, you respect them. I think it's really tragic to see people who have come here with preconceived notions and leave the same way. Not that they should change, but they don't accept other people's ideas; they downgrade them and belittle them. They don't want to work with them. I'm really thankful for the professors in the political science and philosophy departments who have helped me to see things in more of a world view." Cynthia Milledge. "The main thing that has happened to me since I've been here is that I've matured a lot. I've discovered me. And I think I've done that through becoming closer with God. Also I've learned how to be more dependent on myself and not to depend on others. I learned how to go for what I wanted. If there was something I felt like I wanted, I went for it. I feel like I have achieved a goal in that I made it through four years of college! I've learned to believe in myself. If I didn't, no one else would."

Valarie Bass. "Being a Trojan Hostess was exciting because I got to meet a lot of people and entertain high school football recruits. That was rewarding because I learned how to talk to a group of people by telling them about the many activities and fields of study that we have here . . . Mainly, I learned to be responsible in college, which I was definitely not in high school. I learned how to handle the freedom—to party, but not go wild."

Louis Richter. "I would advise an incoming freshman to join organizations and clubs—as many as they can—because I feel that you can learn so much outside the classroom from different types of people. In clubs you have more opportunities to speak to people and also to get different ideas from guest lecturers. Businesses are not just looking for book knowledge, they're looking for the ability to lead and communicate."

Anthony Sewell. "If I had to do it all over again, I would have been more involved in more organizations than I am. I know a lot of people on campus, but I should have used that to get into more organizations like SGA and its functions . . . I was attracted to Troy in the first place because it was a small school and I figured that I could get to know more of my instructors, and that they could deal with me as a person and not just a number. And I like that."

Vince Stansbury. "Start planning for your future right now. It can't wait til the last minute. Things happen so quickly, and if you're not keeping track of it, before you know it you'll be graduating and you won't have a job—you'll be out in the world clueless. I've come to that conclusion because going through college, you learn to become more independent, being away from home and Mom and Dad. When you don't have that paycheck or don't make those grades and you're wondering why, you don't have anybody to blame but yourself. Sooner or later a student has got to take control of their life and grow up, cause the world's not gonna grow up for you. You've got to mold yourself into the world. I think that's what I've learned."

Tracy Rosenquist. "First of all, I would advise an incoming freshman to take school seriously because it does affect your future and too many people don't realize it. Get involved in as many things as you possibly can. Enjoy school! People think four years is a long time, but as a senior, I know, it goes by quick. Personally, I have grown as a person by learning how to deal better with people. Really I just grew up a lot. College helped me to learn more about myself and to realize that there's more out there than what people think there is."

Gataum Advani. "I think I have been well prepared at Troy for graduate school. Being involved in the Honors program has also helped a lot. Troy State's biggest strength, I think, is in the size of the classes which are pretty small. You can get in touch with your teachers without trying too hard. But to me, a weakness is that Troy State is so small that you don't meet different types of people. Most of the people here are from Alabama and Florida. At a bigger school, you would have more people from other states and other parts of the world, which helps in understanding the global nature of life today."

Graduation

After four (or five or six) long years of 8:00 a.m. classes, papers upon papers, late night study vigils, temptations toward irresponsibility ... the graduate finds himself facing a world in which theory becomes practice and all one's preparation is put to test.

It is not unlikely that those "long years" will seem only too short and happy in retrospect. The advice of seniors? From all areas of student life the answers are noticeably similar. Get involved in lots of organizations. Take school seriously or you'll wish you had. Prepare for your future now, not when you're desperate. Be openminded toward new ideas. Have fun! And above all, do not make the mistake of always looking to the next phase of your life for happiness. Enjoy today.

May 31, 1991 saw another sweeping long line of students receive their degrees from Troy State in Sartain Hall. Amid the familiar speeches, fanning spectators, and proud parents, one sensed an air of expectancy, knowing full well that these graduates would literally be the substance of the future. All of the concerns in the political realm as well as the environment, all the intricate workings of community life, all the spiritual and social needs of their sphere of influence would be theirs to manage. Though those students may have protested that they weren't ready for that kind of responsibility, they inherited it nevertheless.

Their destination? Real town, U.S.A. Troy State graduates are undoubtedly in demand. The best school systems, businesses, hospitals and corporations will call on the Placement Office for access to the resumes of top students, and, as always, that service will give employers the information they are seeking—but only on students who bothered to establish a file.

With all its tears, the graduation ceremony is still the easiest part. Beneath that mortar board hat lies the anguish of striving for academic excellence, but in that hand rests the ticket to job opportunities wider than ever before possible.

1991's major news

which U.N. Allied

The turmoil began with horrifying stories of Saddam's brutality toward his own people. In 1988 he dropped poison gas on a Kurdish town, killing hundreds of defenseless villagers.

Saddam Hussein and his loyal Iraqis, daring the "Great Satan" (USA) to interfere. When it did, along with other allied nations, Hussein responded by bombing neutral Israel. Israel did not retaliate but allowed the U.S. Patriot missile system to intercept most of Iraq's SCUD missiles before they ever reached their target.

January 15, 1991—the deadline for Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait. U.S. troops created a “Desert Shield” which became a “Desert Storm” as U.S. troops began their airfare offensive against Hussein.

CBS Anchorman Dan Rather reports on location in Saudi Arabia. The Gulf War was the first war of its kind to be covered play by play on television.

While the troops were in the Middle East, tensions ran high at home between protesters who wanted to “give peace a chance” and advocates of the war who wanted to exterminate Hussein.

The allied air offensive soon overwhelmed Hussein. American troops, sent as early as August, began returning home in March. But the road to peace would be long as the nations sought to work out post war problems. Below, Troy, AL also played a part in the Gulf War. Army reservists were called to leave families and jobs for justice's sake.

The Palestinians, like the Kurds, Armenians, Basques, and Ibos were a nation without a state. The "eye for an eye" and "tooth for tooth" violence on the West Bank between the Israelis and Palestinians dragged on for over 3 years.

Columbian police conduct a raid for illegal narcotics in Bogota. There the Drug Lords were still in power despite a drug war which, as a Columbian attorney said, "has been a failure because it has represented more costs to the nation than benefits for the community."

The dead lie in heaps as a result of civil war in Liberia, West Africa, where tribe fights against tribe out of personal hatred and political rivalry.

Population growth and development polluted and depleted the world's water supply, raising the risk of starvation and epidemics. Here, two boys carry water outside Lima, Peru. States such as California began to ration their water, mandating water saving changes for each household.

Recession was another product of the Gulf War. U.S. banks were in their worst shape since the 1930's. Though banks were failing in a downward spiral, the financial system did not collapse but maintained its stability, thanks to state governments who guarded their banks against "runs."

Three major forest fires swept through California's Yosemite National Park in August 1990, triggered by lightning strikes. Some 24,000 acres of forest were gone before the fire fighters were able to contain the fires.

A new wave of abortion controversy was set off by activists around the country. The moral dilemma would not be easily resolved, as was seen in case after case brought before the courts. States, such as Florida, were given the final word on the issue, not the Supreme Court.

The case of Nancy Cruzan, the victim of a 1983 car accident, which put her in a coma ever since, became the precedent for a string of other "right to die" cases. After a three year legal battle by her parents, Nancy was taken off the life support system and allowed to "die with dignity." The decision angered anti-euthanasia and anti-abortion groups who denounced it as unethical. But right to die groups and families of similar coma victims counted the decision as a step forward for humanity.

Women reporters such as the Boston Herald's Lisa Olson faced hostility that threatened their access into men's locker rooms during sporting events. Several incidents came to light; one in which coach Sam Wyche of the Cincinnati Bengals said, "I will not allow women to walk in on 50 naked men." He was fined $30,000 for violating the NFL's 1985 policy of equal access to players for male and female journalists.

A killer claimed the lives of five students in Gainesville, Florida in September, 1990. The victims, four of whom were students at the University of Florida and the other a student at Santa Fe Community College, were found stabbed and mutilated in off campus apartments. The killings terrorized students across the south and hundreds withdrew from the University of Florida. Though the FBI held extensive investigations, the murderer was not apprehended as of May '91.

Pure country. Garth Brooks and Clint Black, along with other country voices such as Vince Gill, Alan Jackson, and Randy Travis were taking country back to its roots. With an upsurge in country music popularity, the light, melancholy, home and hearth sound of such musicians made them top the charts.

Can't touch him. M.C. Hammer bridged the gap between the rappers and poppers with his atypical rap style which featured softer lyrics set to a very danceable sound. Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em was ahead of New Kids on the block and Madonna with its marathon stay at No. 1 on the pop and rhythm and blues charts.

They're faster, more maneuverable, and more exhilarating than conventional roller skates. Rollerblades, with their single row of polyurethane rollers, became all the rage for sports enthusiasts. Sales skyrocketed from $3 million in 1987 to over $40 million in 1990.

Students pleased with meal plan's new changes

New changes made in the meal plan offered students a wider selection at meal time. Students chose their meal plan according to the number of meals they wanted to have available dents to receive their meals. With the meal equivalency program, students were able to use their meal ticket at the Adams Center Dining Room also. This new change offered a wider variety and was also more convenient for many. The Adams Center offered Pizza Hut personal pan pizzas, a speciality line, a salad bar and also items from The Grill. Food was also prepared for take-outs. However, the Adams Center was not an unlimited program, whereas at Stewart Hall, seconds were almost without limit. Lunches were served in the Adams Center Dining Room Monday through Friday from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Dinner was offered Monday through Thursday from 4:00 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Students enjoy returning for another serving at Stewart Hall.

Ghost tales

Do ghosts really exist or are they just figments of the imagination? Many people have answered that question differently. Although ghosts may or may not exist, it is certain that ghost tales of the past and present are alive and well. Almost every student at Troy State has heard the tale of Sally Shack. Most of the residents of Shackelford Hall are acquainted with the story because Shackelford Hall is where it all began. Sally Shack supposedly lived on the third floor of Shackelford Hall. Sally attended TSU with her boyfriend who was a great athlete. After her boyfriend achieved great success in football, he broke up with Sally and found a new girlfriend. Later that week her body was found hanging in the stairwell. Some believed that early in the morning the ghost of Sally Shack can be found lurking the hallways in search of her lost love.

A more recent ghost tale had created a rush to the video store to rent "Three Men and a Baby". An apparition and a vanishing rifle found in one of the scenes had everyone guessing. A rumor developed that a young boy was shot in the same apartment where the movie was filmed. The apparition and the rifle appeared in the scene where Jack and his mother arrive at the apartment after a break-in. When the couple entered the room a rifle is seen against the wall. As they exit, the rifle seems to have vanished. Also, as the couple pass the window a boy can be seen standing behind the curtains.

Did these events actually occur or was it just someone's imagination told to those who believe in ghosts? Whether or not one wants to believe in ghosts, the tales can still send chills up both the believer and non-believer's spine. □

Stewart Hall offered breakfast, lunch and dinner every day excluding Sunday dinner. Another alternative to dining was made available in the Adams Center. The Trojan Room offered a more elaborate setting complete with table cloths and linen napkins. However, the meal ticket was not accepted there. For a reasonable price, diners were allowed to choose from hot entrees which consisted of favorites such as lasagna, fried chicken, and tacos.

Students also had access to the menus of both dining areas. Menus were posted in the Adams Center and in the dormitories. A menu line was also made available for a quick listing of the daily menus. The meal equivalency plan was very popular due to its wide selection of foods offered, various dining facilities and quick access to the menus. □

Big business begins with small BBQ

"Every day I learn something new ... How to be better with customers, how to work better with my employees—This whole business has been a learning experience that will help in my next venture."

Mark Strother

Entrepreneur Mark Strother says his Barbeque is doing great and growing.

Barbeque was hard to find in Troy before Mark Strother moved to town. After working at a Barbeque restaurant in Opelika for three years, this Jr. marketing major from Auburn decided that he could do just as well in the business, and make more money by going out on his own. So, on December 7, 1987 he opened the doors of his very own establishment, "Mark's Barbeque." Why Troy? Not only were there no bona fide barbeque places in Troy, but the small town atmosphere appealed to Mark. Troy State was also a major attraction for Mark, who with only one year of college behind him, needed a close-by place to complete his marketing major. From its opening, business grew steadily at "Mark's Barbeque" until it's owner confessed that he would like to expand or start a new restaurant and make it a career. "I always wanted to do this ... It makes me feel good to say I have my own business. I consider myself a good businessman, but every day I learn something new—how to be better with customers, how to work better with my employees ... "It's tough to do it, but I feel like I've learned a lot. And even if I don't continue on in the restaurant business, all the experience I've had will help me on down the road. When I graduate, I won't just be thrust out to find experience. I will have had true experience, and I'll be ready for whatever." □

Awareness week

"This proves that you can have fun without drinking."

Ken Elder, SGA

The National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week was held October 15-19, 1990, and was coordinated by the SGA along with the Campus Abuse Prevention Program (CAPP). Four hundred red ribbons were distributed among the students to start off the week, and they were challenged to participate in the non-alcoholic beverage recipe contest and anti-drug abuse poster contest. A mock DUI trial gave everyone a realistic view of what actually happens when a drunk driver comes under the arm of the law. Effective yard displays aimed to cause students to stop and consider the consequences of driving under the influence.

Alternative recreation was the key idea in the series of fun activities that followed, however. A lawn party on Alumni field was the site of volleyball games and picnic dinners. KMX radio, Enterprise, broadcasted live while stu-

“Masquerade” exhibit

One would think that a modest, southern university like Troy State might not be a competitor with larger universities in regards to cultural opportunities. If so, one had only to step into Malone Hall art gallery during October of 1990 to be proved wrong. There, the walls were covered with artwork created by TSU's own students; artwork displayed under the theme of “masquerade.” Each piece reflected a mood of disguise or mystery, coincidentally appropriate for the Halloween season.

A collection of tribal masks, done in everything from charcoal to plaster, provided a striking contrast to the various colorful mardi gras and theatre vizards. Students displayed oils, watercolors, melted glass pieces, inks, and anything else that would serve as an artistic medium. Opp Middle School even contributed to the exhibit with a collection of Cubist designs done in simple coloring pencil.

Indeed, the Malone Hall Gallery of Fine Arts drew much attention during the 1990-91 school year. In addition to “Masquerade,” the gallery hosted Danny Bryan's One Man Exhibition: a pop art collection of pieces characterized by simple American ideas made offbeat by neon paint and contemporary design. alumnus and full time sculptor also drew eyes to his exhibit in November: a forest of abstract shapes made of wood and fiberglass.

If one was looking for cultural enrichment, Malone Hall was a definite resource. It was referred to by Tropolitan Entertainment co-editor, Dave Bryant, as one of the best kept secrets at Troy State. □

However, Awareness week was not the only time the organization focused on stressing the tough facts of substance abuse to TSU students. The bottom line? If you're going to drink, be smart, set a limit, and have a designated driver. □

Soccer club puts feet to a good idea

For a group of guys to start out playing soccer in humble Alumni field, then prove themselves to be contenders with mature teams like Samford, Auburn, Ft. Rucker, and AUM—all in less than a year—was no small feat. The TSU soccer club certainly awakened the small town of Troy to the sport in 1990-91.

The team itself developed in a matter of weeks during Fall quarter of 1989. Dino Evangelista was among the first few who would get together to play in the afternoons. "People would see us playing and come out. We had a lot of talent, so we talked to people to see what it would take to get up a team,"

"It all kind of snowballed. Now that we're seeing the ... realization of this thing, it's kind of exciting."

commented Evangelista. Though the team could not qualify as a university sponsored sport, it did become an official club and played its first game against Ft. Rucker in Winter quarter of 1990, which ended in a 2-2 tie.

Al Brouillette, vice-president of the club and a former member of the University of Alabama-Birmingham soccer team voiced great confidence in the young TSU club. "When I first came here from UAB, nobody played. Within a month, we had nine-on-nine Ghent Mende and Ryan Delphin practice during an afternoon scrimmage in Alumni field. "We're all so different, but united on the field," comments Dino Evangelista.

It all kind of snowballed. Now that we're seeing the culmination and realization of this thing, it's kind of exciting," Evangelista described their first year as "not too bad for a team that doesn't have a coach." With an overall record of 4-2 as of February, 1990, the young team had reason to boast.

Because the team did not have all the advantages of being an official sport, they had to deal with several obstacles. All of their games were played away until the university agreed to pay for half of the much needed soccer goals, and to grant the use of the field beside Sartain in Winter of '91. Additionally, each member had to pay for his own uniform and travel expenses, and learn to cooperate without a coach.

Though the club was young, the members had aspirations of making soccer a varsity sport at TSU. "Troy State is about to make the jump to Division I and they need to pick up another sport. We've proven that we can play on the Division I level," said Brouillette.

Until then, the soccer club would continue to get support from students from all areas of the university. "The team has internationals, Greeks, and independents ... we're all so different, but united on the field. Students from all over campus know about us," said Evangelista. □

Fashion philosophies

Oversized clothes, duck shoes and boots, polos, levis, athletic clothes ... When it came to fashion, Troy State was replete with examples of the latest in all types of tastes. "Everybody wears what they want to wear," commented Kay Qualls, freshman. "To each his own."

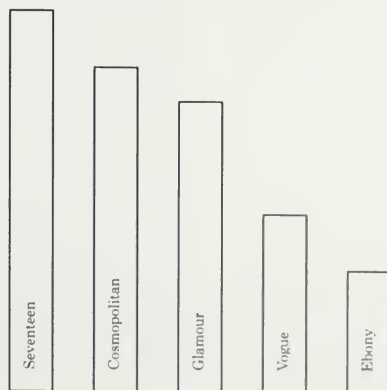

"Comfort." In a word, students like Patrick Sharp were looking for clothes they could live in—suitable for classes, movies, or lounging. This look was captured in the very collegiate style polos, rugby shirts, bluejeans, duckheads, and buckskin shoes. Ginger Burton said college student's attitudes toward polo shirts very definitely qualified the shirt as trendy. "The question is,

'How many polos can you collect?'"

Sherrie Cannon and Amy Burkett agreed. "People are going for comfort," said Cannon. "Sorority and Fraternity people wear their jerseys and jeans, and lots of people are wearing white denim jeans, and those 'plastic' looking athletic shorts," added Burkett.

Other fads quickly adopted by TSU students were the cute-sy "bubble suits," leggings, and drawstring tunics for girls, and hooded shirts and pullovers for either guys and girls. Still these fads did not crowd out the traditional look of starched shirts, silk ties, duckheads, and penny loafers, or straight skirts and pumps. □

In search of a space

The same complaints have been heard over and over again: not enough parking space. Students had expressed their frustration to the student council, Troy State Administrators and the campus police officers who daily issued parking tickets to violators. The faculty also found it annoying to have their reserved spots taken. Lt. Bradley, of Troy State Campus Security responded to the parking situation by saying that the problem was not with availability but convenience of parking spaces. There were 150 parking spaces located in the parking lot across from the security building and 25 spaces surrounding the press box which usually remained vacant except for the vehicles of those who could find no closer space. Some additional parking aided the students in searching for convenient spaces. Seventy-six spaces were made available on the old tennis courts beside the Adams Theatre which gave easy access to classes. Also the area surrounding the boiler room was paved to provide more accessible parking. Many asked for another parking lot. But since the buildings were built so close together, little room remained for an additional parking lot.

Many students were fined daily for illegal parking. This last resort cost students from four to twelve dollars depending on the amount of time it took the student to pay his or

At the beginning of fall quarter an average of 1,000 freshmen selected Troy State to further their education. It has been estimated that by the end of the year only 60 percent will remain enrolled. Why did these students choose to leave? The problem of freshmen dropout has not only affected Troy State, but all colleges have also suffered a loss in their freshmen class. However, Troy State has developed new programs this year as a prevention to lower the percentage of dropout.

The Retention Task Force was designed to find the causes that have led students to leave college. Research has shown that academic, personal and financial difficulties are the major reasons that has caused many to see dropout as the only alternative. Students who have felt that they are not personally involved with the university has also contributed to their decision to dropout. The first year of college for many has meant leaving

In order to get the freshmen more acquainted and comfortable about college, a new class has been created. TSU 101 has been scheduled to begin next year as an elective course for incoming freshmen. This class has been designed to serve as an extended orientation. Students are encouraged to ask questions in order to receive a better understanding of their new environment. The Mentor Program was designed to serve as another aid for freshmen. One goal of this program was to improve the relationship between students and faculty. The Mentor Program was also developed to give students advice related to personal and academic problems. Career counseling was also found as a helpful service in this program. Freshmen, who are full of fears and worries have found the Mentor Program necessary for survival. Dr. Ralph Adams continues to work toward the betterment of TSU.

An outstanding asset to TSU

For twenty-five years, Dr. Ralph Adams held the position of Chancellor at Troy State University. His term began in 1964 and continued until he retired in 1989. Although Dr. Adams retired, he was appointed Chancellor Emeritus by the Board of Trustees. At the age of seventy-five, Dr. Adams has continued to show his loyalty to Troy State, by spending his time preparing beneficial projects, such as fundraisers, as well as writing the history of the university.

During his years as Chancellor, he witnessed several major accomplishments. One was the expansion of branches of TSU in Alabama and overseas. Another was the arrival of fraternities and sororities. As a personal accomplishment, Dr. Adams was named among the top one-hundred University Presidents out of three thousand colleges nationwide. One of his most memorable moments was the visit made by the son of Winston Churchill to Troy State.

Dr. Adams said that the combination of outstanding students, faculty and Chancellor Hawkins has greatly contributed to the success of TSU. Although Dr. Adams is no longer the Chancellor, all the students know that his heart belongs to TSU. When Dr. Adams was asked what he considered to be TSU's weak points, he replied that Troy State did not have any weak points. Thank you Dr. Adams for all of your hard work and complete dedication. □

"The university is lucky to have him, (Chancellor Hawkins) and now its time for me to take it easy. That's about the size of it."

Maddox resigns- "You win some..."

Coach Maddox leads the Trojans to a victory over Nicholls State.

You lose some. This phrase definitely held true on the night of November 10, 1990. On that night the Trojans won a victory over Nicholls State with the final score 24-23. After the game the Trojans lost their head coach Robert Maddox. During the post-game press conference, Maddox announced his resignation to the public which would take effect December 31, 1990. Robert Maddox served as a member of the Troy State University staff for thirteen years. He held the position of head coach for three years. During that time he earned a 13-17 record. After meeting with officials, Maddox felt that his coaching services were no longer needed at Troy State University. Maddox received compliments from Robert Stewart, TSU Athletic Director, on the positive influence that he gave during his term. While Maddox served as head coach the football players possessed good grades and behavior. He was also wished the best of luck in the future. Although Maddox would not be coaching the Trojans in 1991, he felt that they would have a successful season. □

Black History Month

During the month of February Troy students celebrated Black History Month. "Making the dream a reality" was chosen to serve as the theme for the month's activities. The Afro-American society along with other organizations planned their events to focus on the culture and history of Black Americans. Many recalled Dr. Martin Luther King's dream—a dream which Troy State's black leaders hoped to make even more of a reality. The first event of the month was a social in which all students were encouraged to attend. The presidents of various organizations served as speakers during the evening. The speakers touched on campus issues and gave motivation to the students to shoot for the stars with higher grade point averages. Students also had other opportunities to educate themselves during the month. The activities included: a concert by the TSU Gospel Choir, a movie entitled "Eye on the Prize," a Greek show, skit night and the second annual Night of Color. The objective of these activities was to get both black and white students involved together to discuss black history. This enabled the viewers to relate to the activities and to one another.

Leaders who supported Black History Month: Regional McCants, Representative of the Gavel Club; Mark Cady, President of the Afro-American Society; Lorraine Maye, President of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority; Everin Williams, President of the Gospel Choir; Rachel Palmore, Representative of Delta Sigma Theta

"At times we all need to come together... we as students letting each other know we are there for each other."

Lorraine Maye

Those who participated in the activities experienced excellent programs that were said to have been the best ever. The success became a reality due to the many students who took the time and preparation in organizing the month of activities. When students are willing to help each other and work as a group anything can be accomplished. When people learn to see one another as human beings only then will prejudice collapse and equality prevail. □

Dr. Hayes explains to Tracey Blankenship the classes that will be required in order to major in education.

Faculty becomes friends through the Mentor Program

This year Troy State began its Entering Freshmen Mentoring Program. This program was designed to help students adjust to and find success in college life. Approximately two hundred freshmen were chosen to participate in the new program during the 1990-91 year. Plans were being made, however, to offer the service to all incoming freshmen in 1991-92. Each student in the Mentoring Program was assigned to a mentor based on their major. The mentors have personal knowledge and advice to offer to students that may prove to become very helpful when problems or questions arise concerning their major. These mentors consist of some of the best faculty members who are willing to give any needed assistance.

The two hundred students received a letter prior to their arrival to Troy State, which explained that they had been chosen to participate in the new program. They were invited to attend a reception that was held at the beginning of Fall quarter which gave the students and mentors involved in the program a chance to talk and get acquainted. They were also informed about future activities and what to expect.

Many incoming freshmen found the Mentor Program to serve as a very helpful aid during their first year of college. These participants enjoyed the one-on-one counseling and the availability of the mentors to give needed assistance without an appointment. To freshmen faced with many anxieties, mentors provided needful support in adjusting to college life by giving their students the assurance that there is always someone they can talk to. □

"Dr. Hayes is always available and eager to help me if I need to talk to her about anything. She is more than an advisor; she is always friendly and has a genuine concern for my well-being and success at Troy State."

New policy encourages attendance

During spring quarter a new policy was created in hopes of promoting better class attendance. This policy was developed to be enforced in the future quarters also. Under this policy, the instructors were required to have their own attendance policy stated in their syllabus. The class syllabi were given out to the students on the first day of classes. This way the students would have their own copy of their teachers attendance requirements and the possible consequences for not meeting them. Excused absences were based on university related activities or a sudden conflict beyond the students control. Any other reasons for absences were to be considered unexcused. After a certain number of unexcused absences, the students grade would be affected. The Council of Deans and Faculty Advisory Council developed the policy after surveying faculty. They felt that when students register for a class, they are aware of the time for which the class is scheduled and therefore the student should attend. The policy was made to encourage students to get the most out of their classes by promoting attendance. Many students did not like the Policy, and felt that they would still cut class, though not as often. □

Dr. Hawkins — serving beyond the Chancellor's normal duties

The job of being Chancellor of a university requires a lot of time and hard work. With this position automatically comes a packed schedule. In the detailed list of duties the Chancellor was expected to fulfill, the responsibility of teaching a class was usually not found in the Chancellor's job description. However, Dr. Hawkins along with Dr. Emma Norris teamed together to teach HON 400, Honors Capstone in Leadership. The atmosphere of the class was a working environment in which students were encouraged to dress accordingly. The class met three days a week in the executive conference room in the Administration Building. The grades were based on class participation, written work, oral presentations and the remaining 25 percent of the grade was based on the final. The students attended field trips to business settings such as South Trust Bank Headquarters in Birmingham and the State House to meet with the governor. These requirements and activities definitely met the objective to install leadership abilities in the students. Certainly Dr. Hawkins served as a qualified role model to help teach leadership. □

TSU celebrates Earth Day

..... Picnic lunches allowed the students to enjoy their environment by eating outside in the Amphitheater.

Many are concerned about the well being of the environment, but individuals felt that they could not do anything to improve these conditions alone. Earth week served as a solution to this dilemma. The week of April 20th was declared Earth Week for Troy State University. Earth Week 1991 was organized by the TSU Environmental Club along with the assistance of the SGA and CERS. During the week students and faculty became aware of the earth's environmental conditions as well as some ways they could help protect the earth. The week was informative as well as enjoyable. The band "Frankly Scarlet" performed for the students as they enjoyed their dinner in the Amphitheater. Speakers also informed the students of environmental issues. Information on the environment was given to those who participated and they also learned about organizations, such as the Environmental Club.

As more people found out about the Environmental Club the attendance at the meetings showed an increase. The state of the environment had become a national issue. This organization was offered to the students as a way for the students to get personally involved and create ways of solving this problem. The club did more than discuss issues, they also took action. One way was the "Save the Ducks" program. This program consisted of placing no littering signs and additional trash cans at Lake Lagoona. Earth Week provided important information and enjoyable events which caused many students to realize that protecting the earth was everyone's responsibility. □

Concerns for the environment spark recycling

With the concerns for the environment on many minds, the act of recycling became strongly encouraged. Many communities started separating their wastes in effort to preserve the natural resources. Troy also started taking measures to recycle. Each building on campus had at least one container for recycling. These containers were emptied daily and placed at the physical plant in a 45 foot trailer. The containers and the trailer used for this project were furnished by Mount Scrap. The labor and materials were supplied by the university. Plans were being made to extend recycling in the dormitories and dining areas. Styrofoam cups were substituted with wax paper cups in the Adams Center Dining room. A ruling by the Alabama State Legislature stated that by 1992 all state institutions should recycle 25 percent of capable materials. TSU set a goal to exceed the minimum requirement and recycle 30 percent this year and a goal of 80 percent has already been set for next year. During the year, Troy State University showed significant progress and will continue to improve it's recycling programs. □

"Troy's new recycling program has the potential to produce far-reaching effects. Not only can the program help to save energy and reduce wasteful consumption, but it can also help to mold Troy into an environmentally conscious example for other institutions. This program, along with other campus organizations like TSU's Environmental Club, can really make a difference in globally minded reduction and consumption. I am very glad to see this program set into motion."

Jennifer Dickey

Survey shows Troy campus rates high in safety

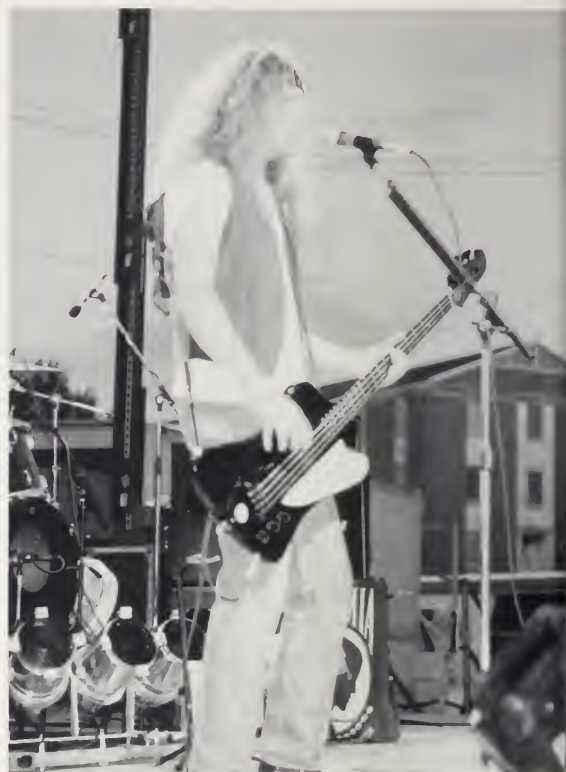

During a national survey, Troy State University was listed in USA Today as being one of the safest four year colleges. In order to determine safety the survey took into consideration the crime rate. The crime rate was compiled by the number of FBI index crimes submitted for every one thousand students. Troy State was the leader in safety when compared to the rest of Alabama's four year colleges. Troy State was also listed among the top fifteen nationally.

The students' behavior and the location of the school was thought to have been the reasons for Troy's high rating.

There were seven police officers and five patrol cars which daily provided protection. Golf carts were also used as an easier way to patrol between the buildings on campus. The majority of crime that took place was committed by non-students. These crimes were usually not reported due to lack of information on the crime. However, many students showed continuous concern for safety by reporting crimes and other questionable activities. With the continued combination of cooperation among security and the students, Troy State will remain a safe university. □

The Adams Center Union Board presented Drivin' -n- Cryin' on May 2, 1991. About one thousand students attended the concert which was held in the old tennis courts by the Adams Center. While on tour, the Georgia band made a visit to Troy and promoted their new album "Fly Me Courageous". The band's progressive music had been climbing the charts and their name was catching with many students.

Music videos featuring Drivin' -n- Cryin' also appeared on MTV. The Union Board tried to offer a variety when choosing concerts during the year. With so many students having various tastes in music, the Union Board satisfied students with a variety ranging from the "Kentucky Headhunters" to Drivin' -n- Cryin'. Having the concert on campus in a central location was also favored by the students. □

Telecommunications extends services throughout campus

Over spring break, changes were made in the telephone system. The Troy State Telecommunications made additional phone lines and also simplified dialing procedures for off-campus callers. On-campus fraternity houses and the International House also received these services. The new lines allowed 40 extra calls to go through, which prevented the callers from receiving busy signals. With this new system, out of town callers only had to dial 670 and an extension number to reach someone on campus. Prior to this system a recording answered the incoming calls before the call was transferred to the extension number. Students received call forwarding and waiting and also automatic redial free of charge.

The installation of the new system, however was not free of charge. The total cost was around 20,000 dollars which came from bond monies. In order to extend these services which were requested by students and parents the South Central Bell lines were disconnected. This allowed the fraternity houses and International House to be able to benefit from the direct dialing also. Although South Central Bell was disconnected, Telecommunications offered the same services and the students were not charged any additional fees. Telecommunications did not charge tax and they also offered a five percent discount on long distance calls.□

"I like the direct dialing because it's easier for my friends and relatives to get through to my room. I especially enjoy the discount rates because I can talk to my friends up north more without having an outrageous phone bill."

Celebrate! The students, faculty and the community of Troy displayed their Trojan spirit as they celebrated Troy State University during Homecoming week.

Each year Homecoming consisted not only of the parade and the game, but also activities designed to involve the students of TSU and the community of Troy.

Many fun-filled activities such as T-shirt Day, TSU Jersey Day, and School Colors Day are each important aspects of Homecoming. The Student Government Association designated these days encouraging the student body to get involved.

Also planned were competitions between various organizations on campus. The winners of each event were awarded the "Homecoming Spirit Award." Organizations anticipated Homecoming week, excited to display their spirit of TSU. This year's overall winners were Alpha Delta Pi and Sigma Chi. They participated and won the majority of the four events judged: Skit Night; Banner contest; Yard display and Paint the Town Red and Gray.

It's not just an act.

The drama students are very proud of what they do. To them, performing in a play gives a sense of accomplishment and satisfaction that can be found nowhere else. Memorandum was just one of many plays this year that entertained the students and the residents of Troy. In Memorandum, freshmen and more experienced juniors and seniors combined their talents to impress the audience.

AT THE MOVIES

The students of Troy State University are "at the movies" on Wednesday nights. Each Wednesday night the Adams Center Union Board presents some of the top movies at Smith Hall Auditorium at 7:00 and 9:30 p.m. Popcorn, candy and cokes are sold in the lobby as refreshments. Students enjoy going together in groups or with dates. This offers students the convenience of a movie theater and entertainment right on campus. The variety of movies featured this year included "Pretty Woman", "Ghost", "Graftiti Bridge", "Home Alone" and "Misery" just to name a few. Many students wait until they can see movies at school with their friends at a cheaper price. Movie night in Smith Hall has become one of the top sources of entertainment at TSU.

TSU students enjoy playing around before the movie "Pretty Woman."

CLOGGING THEIR WAY TO FITNESS

One of the newly established groups was the TSU Clogging Team. Throughout the course of the year, clogging became a popular way of dancing and having fun at social events. The Clogging Team performed at numerous functions held at the university. These dedicated dancers enjoy performing. They also have the added benefit of a great cardiovascular exercise.

Practice Makes Perfect

Alpha Psi Omega & Univ. Dancers

Alpha Psi Omega is an honor society for outstanding students in the dramatic arts. It stimulates interest in theatre activities at Troy State University. The members of this organization are always involved in campus functions, as well as theater oriented service projects. Their dedication to the arts will pay off because, as well as being stars across campus, they are the future celebrities of tomorrow.

The University Dancers is a performing group that consists of people who enjoy dancing. The dancers are chosen at the beginning of each quarter by audition. Upon selection, the University Dancers prepare for numerous school and community performances. They are dedicated to bring a variety of entertaining dances for many audiences. This year, they performed a show in which they danced to a variety of tunes from Broadway shows.

Sewell, Robert Mullinax and Don Richard play their best on the trombone. Right: Allen Grey, plays a trumpet solo as Jazz Ensemble Director Ralph Ford leads him. Bottom: The 1991 TSU Jazz Ensemble entertains the audience at the Annual Outdoor Concert in the Adams Amphitheatre.

The Troy State University Jazz Ensemble is a contemporary music group that performs throughout the southeast at various schools and junior colleges. This ensemble is primarily for music majors and provides them with countless opportunities to improve their skills in improvisation and a variety of jazz styles. The Jazz Ensemble began rehearsing in January and met two days a week during the Winter and Spring Quarter. Concert performances began around March and lasted through May. This year's opening performance was a rally for the troops in the Persian Gulf. The band then toured to area high schools for recruitment purposes and also performed in the second annual Ozark Jazz-Fest. They also performed in Troy at the Adams amphitheatre in conjunction with the Symphonic Band and second Jazz Band. The jazz ensemble's last weekend of performances included a standing room only concert in McKenzie Park in Panama City, Florida as part of the Bay County Art Alliance's Concert in the Park series. They completed their concert season by playing in the city park in Tallassee, Alabama. At this event, the mayor of Tallassee presented Mr. Ralph Ford with a resolution from the office of the Mayor proclaiming May 19, 1991 as Troy State University Jazz Ensemble Day in Tallassee.

CMENC is another aspect of the musical family at Troy State. It is open to all music education majors and strives to emphasize the proper connection of music and learning. Many of the students involved in the Collegiate Music Educators National Conference are also part of the Sound of the South or the Collegiate Singers.

The members of Collegiates pursue an active program of performances, including on-campus concerts, tours and television performances. The Fall sing, The Winter Quarter Concert and The Pops Concert are each important performances with various styles of music. This year's Winter Quarter Concert (March 3) paid tribute to Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart on the 200th anniversary of his death.

The Collegiate Singers traveled to various areas of the Southeast performing numerous concerts in colleges, high schools and churches. This week long tour ended at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Florida. Through much hard work, these talented students have succeeded in astounding audiences and receiving much recognition from all who have attended these events.

Two members of Collegiates, Penny Lewis and Jody Shealy, currently expressed their feelings toward the Collegiates experience. Jody was a member of his high school and church choral groups and enjoyed being exposed to different types of music. Coming from a musical family, he wanted to find a group on campus in which he could express his musical abilities. He found this through the Collegiates. To him, Collegiates is "a great way for a non-band member to get involved in music with those who also enjoy the music experience."

Penny, a longtime member, enjoys the different activities the Collegiates are involved in each year. She was among those who took the week long tour in February. The exposure to different types and levels of music is her favorite aspect of Collegiates. Because of Collegiates, she feels more musically rounded.

The Love of Music

Kappa Kappa Psi and Madrigals

Providing the Troy State University system with music is the concern of the members of Kappa Kappa Psi and the Madrigal Singers.

Serving the Sound of the South in various ways, Kappa Kappa Psi is a growing band fraternity. Kappa Kappa Psi holds several fundraisers during the year, all profits going to the Sound of the South. The fraternity helps provide transportation and loading services for away games and also keeps the band supplied with water and refreshments during band practices.

Selected by audition only, the Madrigal Singers are a special ensemble of Troy State students who combine the talents of singing and dancing to entertain others. Besides performing in various on-campus concerts, the Madrigals have several tours during the school year including a Christmas tour to surrounding high schools, touring engagements with the Collegiate Singers, and performances at various clubs and community organizations in the Troy area.

Perfect Harmony

Phi Mu Alpha and Tau Beta Sigma

Phi Mu Alpha is a professional music fraternity for men excelling in areas of music. The members are dedicated to promoting it, performing it, and researching it. One of the highlights of the year was the Big Band Dance they sponsored on Valentine's Day. A band played music from the 1920's and it was held at the Pike County Fair Grounds.

Tau Beta Sigma is a national and honorary sorority for women with outstanding abilities in music. While serving in Troy State University's Sound of the South Band, the sisters of Tau Beta Sigma promote achievement. They generate a respect and appreciation for band music and performances.

Sisterhood is a key note for SAI

Sigma Alpha Iota

Sigma Alpha Iota is an international women's music fraternity established in 1903, to foster interest and social contact in music and promote the high standards of creativity, performance and research in American music. It strives for excellence in furthering, establishing and maturing the musical talents of its sisterhood. The fraternity serves the Troy State music department by volunteering for parts in the spring musical, selling concessions and ushering at various performances in Smith Hall. Additionally, the sisters raise money for their philanthropies which are national music organizations, perform a spring musical, participate in various concerts and join with their brother fraternity Phi Mu Alpha in service and social activities.

The Art of Fellowship

The Art Guild & Wesley Foundation

The Art Guild promotes interest in the arts and gives students opportunities to participate in individual and departmental projects. The club made a "Chinese New Year" dragon for the Homecoming display and titled it "Drag 'em On Down, Trojans." They have had drawing classes in the evening and often act as official hosts and hostesses for art displays in the Gallery. The Art Guild also continues to sponsor the Alice Thornton Scholarship.

The Wesley Foundation believes that its purpose is to meet the needs of each and every person. They cater to the spiritual, physical and social aspect of each person.

Wesley Foundation offers Bible studies and inspirational speakers as well as Christian fellowship through intramural sports such as football, softball and basketball. They also offer weekend events and retreats. They feel that the Wesley Foundation is a home away from home with Christ-like love and fellowship.

Serving as a very active organization on campus is the Baptist Campus Ministries. Ken May serves as Campus Minister and helps organize student activities. Weekly activities at the BCM include Alpha Omega, Intramurals, Master Life, Drama, Puppets, Clowns, Bible Study, and Discipleship Groups. Ministry teams travel to surrounding communities to share their talents with various church groups and schools teaching them valuable lessons.

To Keith Saulsberry and LaDonna DeBruler the BCM is one of their favorite places on campus. For Keith, the BCM provides a place for him, as a black student, to worship without pressure. Before college he had not heard of discipleship groups or Quiet Times. The BCM is an "essential part of his college life."

LaDonna feels playing games, studying and meeting people are important aspects of the BCM. She also enjoys the uplift given to her by being surrounded by Christian friends.

The BCM not only provides an opportunity for spiritual growth and Christian fellowship with others, but also fun-filled activities for all students.

A Warm Home

Christian Student Center

The Christian Student Center is a place of fellowship for students and is sponsored by the Church of Christ. It cultivates spiritual growth and strives to provide students with opportunities to learn from each other as they serve th Lord. Weekly, students participate in group devotionals and Bible Studies. Members also go on many different retreats throughout the year. Another favorite activity is the Drama Troupe, which is a singing group comprised of male CSC members.

The Gospel Choir vocalizes their views to the students on campus. This talented group meets several times a week to prepare for concerts and other performances in local churches. The choir was organized with the belief that every good life stems from an inner peace. The members strive to bring this inner message to God's people through songs and praises.

Fall Quarter, the Gospel Choir sang at an Inauguration concert held with Amy Grant. Students enjoyed listening to the music while eating a picnic lunch in front of Shackelford Hall. The concert was attended by students, faculty and alumni. Dwayne Owes was able to show off his talent by singing along with Amy Grant.

During an Alpha Omega meeting held at the Baptist Campus Ministries building, the Gospel Choir held their Winter Concert. Those in attendance were uplifted by the songs performed. After the concert, students left the BCM humming.

Freedom of the Press

Alpha Epsilon Rho & Soc. of Prof. Journalists

Alpha Epsilon Rho and the Society of Professional Journalists have Troy State's finest broadcasting and journalism majors. The goals of Alpha Epsilon Rho are scholarship achievement and creative participation in every aspect of broadcasting. Alpha Epsilon Rho is involved in many projects to enhance their organization. One of their major fundraisers was a carnation sale on Valentine's Day. They also attended the regional convention over Christmas break. While there, Christina Tyler won two broadcasting awards.

The Society of Professional

Journalists is the oldest national journalism organization in the country and promotes many aspects in the journalism field. This year, they were very proud to sponsor the Freedom of Information Forum. At this forum, journalists and law enforcement officials were invited to speak about current issues in the media. They also produced public service announcements and held several book sales and in which the remaining books were donated to help restore the Elba Library.

Headlines and Deadlines

PALLADIUM

Deadlines . . . Deadlines . . . More Deadlines! The 1990-1991 PALLADIUM staff certainly knows that the word "deadline" means working hard, doing the best and being responsible, prepared and creative all at the same time. The yearbook staff has had a wonderful year producing the 1991 PALLADIUM. They began in September by getting their assignments for the year. Each person was responsible for working on a specific section by using their own personal creativity. As the deadlines came slowly but surely, the goal of creating a super PALLADIUM became a reality.

"We have to work as a team," said staff member Paula Hilyer. The staff spent many long hours working together through thick and thin. There were many times when they were happy and laughing, and even, at times, stressed out. Through it all, they stood beside one another by helping out, boosting confidence and assuring each other that hard work would soon pay off. Every member did their own small part which contributed to the making of a complete yearbook. This creation is a treasure which will be passed down from generation to generation recalling historic events and fond memories.

PALLADIUM PEOPLE

A Salute to Dedication

Photography, TROPOLITAN, USPB

The Photography Department at Troy State University is a wonderful help to the PALLADIUM Staff. They provide photographic services, not only for the PALLADIUM, but also to other groups on campus. The Photography Department is responsible for taking and developing many pictures. They also have student workers who prove to be a great asset. These students learn how to take professional photos and develop them in the dark room. The Photography Department is under the leadership of Donald Norsworthy and Ed Moseley. They are greatly appreciated for their hard work and understanding.

The TROPOLITAN is the official campus newspaper. The staff members of the TROPOLITAN are dedicated to bringing the best news about current issues, features and sports to students of Troy State University. In order to get the newspaper out on Thursdays, they work hard to reach their many deadlines.

All writing, editing, layouts and selling of advertisements in the TROPOLITAN are done by Troy State students. They prove to be creative and devoted workers who are seriously interested in journalism.

The University Student Publications Board serves as a policy setting board and a management board. It's main responsibility is to supervise the TROPOLITAN, the PALLADIUM, and any other University Publication the Chancellor places under the board's jurisdiction. Another function of USPB is to select and employ the editors and business managers of the publications on campus.

These pre-medical students strive to excel in the area of academics, as well as help their community. Many of them continue their education in medical school to become medical professionals. The University Honors Alliance boasts membership of many of these Pre-med students as well as students with other majors.

The University Honors Alliance was formed in 1988 by the Student Honors Advisory Council. This council is made up of students representing all areas of academic life at Troy State University. Duties of the Honors Alliance Council include recruiting scholars, distributing information and assisting in the advisement of students.

The Honors Alliance is the governing body over the University Honors Program. In the program, outstanding students are offered classes that are more challenging than regular classes. These are offered in the English, History, Art, Music, Psychology and biology departments. One and three hour classes that are required for students to be considered as University Honors Scholars are also included in the program.

Verona Campbell, a University Honors student, enjoys her honors classes because she feels they are taught by "teachers that treat you like you have a mind." Rebecca Pugh, also involved in the Honors Program, enjoys the different and relaxed atmosphere of the honors classes. Her favorite honors class covers Fantastic Literature.

All For Education's Sake

Kappa Delta Pi and SAEA

Students majoring in Education have many education organizations that they may join. Two such organizations are Kappa Delta Pi and the Student Alabama Education Association. As prospective teachers, all who choose one or both of these organizations have made a vital decision toward a brighter future. Both organizations are support groups made up of students who have joined together for goals in organizing a better education for future students.

Students known for their outstanding achievements in the field of education are recognized through Kappa Delta Pi. This is the oldest honor society on campus. Membership privileges are extended to those who show their worthy educational ideas, commendable personal qualities and sound scholarship.

Through SAEA, students are able to meet their special needs as future educators. Whether their talents lie in leadership skills, writing or meeting and greeting people, they find SAEA as a means to add to those skills while strengthening themselves as people and future educators. This year SAEA served the faculty on Teacher Appreciation Day, (Feb. 14), and was able to meet Lamar Higgins (NASA Representative) on Career Day.

Helping those around us

Psi Lambda, SCEC, SWK

Chartered in the Spring of 1989, Psi Lambda is a fast growing organization. Psi Lambda promotes interest in the various fields of psychology and enables students to get a better understanding of those job opportunities. Psi Lambda also provides the campus with speakers who address such topics as Eating Disorders and Terminal Illnesses.

A pre-professional organization for Social Work majors, Social Work Konnection offers fellowship, education and opportunities for service to students in the Social Work field.

The Student Council for Exceptional Children is an organization for Education majors who specialize in working with exceptional children. Special Education major, Selena Wilson enjoys SCEC because she is able to interact with other students with her major. The History of Debate

Debate/Forensics & Phi Alpha Theta

The Debate/Forensics team is an organization open to students interested in speech, acting and debate. A few of the reasons to join are to learn better research skills, to increase phases and types of speech, to meet new people, and to earn college credit. The Debate/Forensics team compete with other schools in two events: debate and individual speaking. In April, the group presented the Readers Theater and sponsored a Toast Masters Club for the Troy community.

Phi Alpha Theta is an international honor society. The Iota Mu chapter of Troy State University promotes historical study by students and faculty members. Members are selected on the basis of superior ability in the study or writing of history.

Truth and Justice

Alpha Phi Sigma & Lambda Alpha Epsilon

Many people are involved in Alpha Phi Sigma and Lambda Alpha Epsilon which are two Criminal Justice organizations on campus. Alpha Phi Sigma is an honor society for students who have an overall GPA of 3.0 and a 3.2 in either Criminal Justice or corrections. Along with Lambda Alpha Epsilon, they recruit students into active pre-involvement. Lambda Alpha Epsilon has been involved in many activities. On November 15-17, they attended the Southeastern Regional Conference in Tallahassee, Florida and competed with other southeastern schools. They also went to the National Conference in Columbus, Georgia over spring break. Lambda Alpha Epsilon participated in the National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week and the Wellness Fair by passing out alcohol tolerance forms and giving a defense class for date rape. Both groups work together to maintain the United States as a strong country.

The Politics of P. R.

PCO Leaders and College Rep.

To be a great politician, one must first be great in public relations. Although the PCO leaders probably do not have political aspirations, they use their public relations skills by being excellent hosts and hostesses to incoming freshmen. They help freshmen get acquainted with Troy State University by giving tours of the campus with stories of past events. After PCO, each freshman feels a little closer to the University family.

The College Republicans have gone a step further by using their public relations skills to make a difference in political issues on and off campus. They begin by making the issues known to students and members of surrounding communities. Some members may have future political aspirations, but others are quite happy with concentrating on the decisions and actions of the present government without committing themselves to lifetime political positions.

Two members of the College Republicans recently voiced their thoughts about the organization. Gregg Norquist feels that all people should be involved in the political process that governs our country. He enjoys meeting candidates of local, state and national elections, and discussing with them the pros and cons of governmental policies. Gregg is majoring in Public Administration and plans to become a public official.

Rick Cikovic also finds politics extremely interesting. He needed some medium through which to express his political views and College Republicans was his answer. Participating in Governor Hunt's election and attending forums held with elected officials furthered his fascination with politics. He plans to eventually work in a government related position, but he is not striving for political office.

Rick feels politicians should be placed in office by those around them, not by themselves.

Math & Science's Future

BBB, Env. Club, Sq. Root of C

Beta Beta Beta is an organization for undergraduate students who wish to learn more about biological research. It provides opportunities to experiment and learn about the world by using knowledge available in the field of natural sciences. It also encourages high scholastic achievement.

The Square Root of C Math Club gives students opportunities to meet and further cultivate their common interest in mathematics. Each quarter the group holds several meetings that are designed to help math students better understand the various areas of math and promote better student-teacher relations.

The Environmental Science Club is a new organization to the Troy State campus. Through this club, students become more aware of the Earth and become responsible in taking care of it. The Environmental Science Club was very active this year. They sponsored speakers from off campus and helped plan some events for Earth Day. They also sponsored a local litter clean up, in which they helped clean Lake Lagoona. Also, the club took a field trip to the Farley Nuclear Plant in Dothan, Alabama.

The Troy State University Squadron of the Arnold Air Society is an honor organization of elite AFROTC Corps Cadets whose purpose is to promote and further the goals of the US Air Force ROTC and to support their community. Their support is provided in the way of service projects, joint projects with the auxiliary society of Angel Flight and national projects each AAS squadron is required to participate. The Arnold Air Society exists for the campus and the community but most importantly for the US Air Force.

Angel Flight is an active service organization on the TSU campus and in the Troy community. It is sponsored by and focused on promoting the Air Force ROTC. All students are eligible and invited to become members. Each year the Angels pride themselves on their many hours of campus activities and community service.

Only through advertising are people able to distinguish between different aspects of a product. The United States Armed Forces has devised different ways to describe its individual divisions by using advertising. TSU advertising students are being trained to devise these and other types of advertisements.

The TSU chapter of the American Advertising Federation was organized to help advertising students on campus have a better understanding of the advertising field and to network with professionals in this area. Students are not only trained with journalism skills, but also layout and design. These students probably never thought their careers would be so closely linked with various other careers, but many businesses, whether small or large depend greatly on their expertise.

The mission of Air Force ROTC is to educate and commission officers for the United States Air Force. AFROTC Det. 17 (TSU) was established in September 1971. The ROTC curriculum includes classroom instruction, jobs within the corps and a weekly one hour leadership lab. Cadets are encouraged to participate in all college activities and many are involved in sororities, fraternities, religious organizations, varsity sports and various other programs. Two AFROTC programs are offered — a four or two year program. Students can compete for scholarships or a tax-free monthly allowance. TSU's ROTC cadets are ready to meet the challenge of the future.

Activities Full of Fun

ACUB, Bowling Club & Clogging Team

The Adams Center Union Board works to provide a variety of activities and entertainment for TSU students. They present popular movies and different tournaments each quarter. The main event of the year are the big name concerts. This year, they sponsored Heart and Cheap Trick in Montgomery and the Kentucky Headhunters and Travis Tritt in Dothan.

The Bowling Club is an organization for people who enjoy bowling. Members must be full time students with at least a 2.0 GPA and a sincere interest in the sport. The newly formed organization meets weekly so that the members can compete with each other in order to keep themselves super bowlers.

A new organization to the TSU campus is the Clogging Team. This is the first year for the group and Joyce Sorrell is the advisor. The members of the team stay busy by performing clogging dances at various functions. Some of the events they participated in this year were the Piney Woods Festival and "Y" Day, both in Enterprise, and the Jean Lake Festival in Troy.

Leading the Way

Student Government Association

The heartbeat of Troy State University, the Student Government Association, completed another busy and successful year. One of its main goals is to increase student participation. As fall quarter began, many students showed interest by running for Senate. They involved themselves in many worthy projects, such as annually sponsoring Homecoming and the Easter Egg Hunt. In February, they supported a Yellow Ribbon Week to honor the American troops in the Persian Gulf. In this week, T-Shirts were sold and banners were put up for students to sign. To conclude the week, Mr. James D. Martin spoke and rallied TSU students to support the United States. In the spring, a can drive was sponsored in which organizations helped gather aluminum cans to recycle. This year, suggestion boxes were put in building and dorms across campus so that students could voice their opinion and also the SGA members would know the student's view.

Trojan Ambassadors and Hostesses

Troy State University is fortunate to have three groups organized to promote student, faculty and visitor relations. The first of those organizations is the Trojan Ambassadors. Begun in 1983 as the official group of university hosts, the Ambassadors serve as tourguides for campus visitors; as ushers for various programs on campus; and as assistants to the Chancellor and First Lady for the Homecoming reception. The Trojan Ambassadors also entertain prospective students and their parents during campus visits. Ambassadors serve one-year terms and new members are chosen by application and interview each spring.

During football and baseball season at TSU, a group of women devote their Saturdays to recruiting potential football and baseball players. These ladies are the official representatives of Troy State football and baseball, the Trojan Hostesses. Their purpose is to assist the football and baseball coaches in handling new recruits, to encourage and support the teams and promote school spirit. The Hostesses not only work with recruits, but also give tours of TSU. They are selected by an interview process and both organizations are open to all TSU ladies.

The Directors and Assistants of men's residence enjoy serving the University not just for payment, but also for the satisfaction of doing a great job. Their duties include checking halls during university regulated visitation hours, giving directions to those who are lost, and keeping all facilities in tip top shape. If the living surroundings are not satisfactory, the Physical Plant is notified immediately. They are responsible for making each living area comfortable - just like home.

Simply the Best...

Under the direction of Dr. John Long, a famed bandmaster, the Sound of the South is an acclaimed band that encourages the Trojan spirit. The band learned a variety of music which captivated many audiences. The band marched in many parades this year such as the National Peanut Festival Parade in Dothan, Governor Guy Hunt's Inauguration Parade in Montgomery, and the Troy State University Homecoming Parade.

It has been an exciting year for the Sound of the South. It is due to the dedication and enthusiasm of each member. Their devotion brings pride to them and to TSU. The Troy State University Band proves that hard work and leadership always pay off.

The job of the rush counselors begins during Spring quarter with an orientation. Then the rush counselors come back the day before the rushees arrive to help them move into the dorm and get settled in. The rush counselors give general information about the sororities to the rushees, and run errands for them. Plus, one night all the rushees can participate in a skit and talent show. The rush counselors guide and counsel the girls every step of the way towards making their decision. You did a terrific job ladies!

are very important people in a fraternity or sorority. A sweetheart may add beauty and glamour or contribute muscles and skill. They have been chosen by the chapter and will represent the organization as a very special member.

Thanks, trainers for a commendable job.

Senior student trainer Chris Howell, does an ultrasound muscle stimulation for Tony Jackson who has a soft tissue injury. Howell will become a graduate assistant trainer beginning this summer at the University of Mississippi in Oxford, Mississippi.

Treating injuries is only one of the many duties of the athletic trainers. Troy State University's athletic trainers are the support personnel of the athletic department. They are in charge of the prevention, recognition, treatment and rehabilitation of athletic injuries. Troy State is presently working towards accreditation in the National Athletic Training Association.

At TSU, there are three certified athletic trainers, a full-time graduate assistant and many student trainers. These student trainers have a variety of academic majors, including teaching and non-teaching degrees in Health Education, Physical Education and Sports Medicine.

The freshmen and sophomore student trainers take clinical classes for academic development. Juniors assist upperclassmen with team sports while the senior student trainers are responsible for an assigned sport. At least one junior or senior, plus a staff member, attends each TSU sporting event, at home and away.

Despite having two consecutive 4-6 seasons in '88 and '89, Robert Maddox and the Trojans came into the 1990 season hoping to go out of the Division II ranks in style. The Trojans opened the season with a loss at UCF, but won their next two rather convincingly, and expectations were running high. The Trojans then dropped two consecutive games and also dropped to a 2-3 record at mid-season. The second half of the season opened better with a win over Delta State. The Trojans then swapped victories with losses for the last four games and finished the second half of the season at 3-2. The Trojans finished the season batting .500 across the board; 5-5 overall, 4-4 in the GSC, 4-4 vs. NCAA Div. II, and 1-1 vs. NCAA Div. IAA.

The Trojans opened the season in Orlando against Div. IAA foe Central Florida. After a hard fought, low scoring three-and-a-half quarters, TSU took the lead 10-9 with 5:06 left to play. The Knights then drove 80 yards and scored with only 45 seconds left to play, thus sealing the victory for UCF 16-10.

The Trojans opened it's GSC season with a 28-7 thrashing of West Georgia. Julius Pittman, the game's MVP, sparked the Trojans by returning seven punts for 159 yards, including one for 68 yards and a touchdown. The Trojan defense also played well by holding WGC to only five first downs on the afternoon.

TSU opened it's home season by soundly defeating Livingston 31-6. TSU's offense racked-up 351 total yards against the LU defense, 160 of which came from Eddie Coleman, Derrick Moore and Wes Lucas at the tailback position. TSU's defense played another excellent game by holding LU to -6 yards on the ground. The win improved the Trojan's record to 2-1 overall and 2-0 in the GSC.

Bottom: Fullback Tony Richardson shows that balance, determination and basic talent will get you through any obstacle that stands in your way. Jackson finished the year gaining 343 yards on 94 carries and four touchdowns. He averaged 4.1 yards per carry, which is very high for a fullback.

After a week off the Trojans continued its season with a heartbreaking loss to Valdosta State in Troy. Kicking game breakdowns proved to be instrumental in the loss. VSC blocked a pair of Troy punts, leading to ten points. With four seconds left VSC hit a 43 yard field goal to squeak by Troy State 22-20.

The Trojans hoped to return to the win column against defending national champion and second ranked Mississippi College, but the Choctaws proved to be too much in a 36-16 loss for the Trojans. Despite the loss, TSU's Derrick Moore ran for 92 yards on just 12 carries. The Trojans fell to 2-3 overall and 2-2 in the GSC.

A week after the disappointing loss to Mississippi College the Trojans exploded to a 35-0 lead in the first half against Delta State, then, after a rather dismal second half, the Trojans held on to win 42-28. Derrick Moore continued to play well as he rushed for a season high 116 yards.

The Trojans continued its schedule on the road with a 16-7 loss to UNA, the first time Troy has lost to UNA since 1985. The UNA offense took a total of eight seconds to score its first six points in the game. The Trojan defense held UNA to a scoreless second half, but TSU could not overcome the UNA defense. The Trojans fell to 3-4 overall and 3-3 in the GSC.

TSU evened its record at 4-4 and went to 4-3 in the GSC in a 41-33 Homecoming shootout against UT-Martin.

Steve Summers threw for Two TD's and Derrick Moore and Tony Jackson each scored twice as the Trojans fought back from a 12 point fourth quarter deficit. The Trojans survived the Pacer's run-and-shoot offense, which piled up 503 total yards.

The Trojans closed out its GSC season with a hard fought 21-10 loss to 12th ranked Jacksonville State. TSU's defense held JSU's powerful offense to just 75 yards and seven points in the first half, but the Gamecocks scored two touchdowns in their first two possessions of the second half and held off the Trojans for the remainder of the game.

Middle: Charles Bush, Jon Heath and Rodney Singleton show a West Georgia running back why he should have gone the other way.

TSU rolled up 425 yards and held off a furious fourth quarter rally by Nicholls State to finish the season with a 24-23 victory. The Colonels scored 20 fourth quarter points, but they fell just short when a two point conversion try failed with 2:21 left to play. The Trojans finished the season 5-5 overall and 4-4 in the GSC.

Following the Nicholls State game head coach Robert Maddox read a prepared statement to the press announcing his resignation after three years as head coach and after 13 years on the staff. Said A. D. Robert Stewart, "Robert Maddox is a fine young man. His character is above reproach. We wish him and his family the best."

The Trojan offense finished the season averaging 229.6 yards rushing and 129.7 yards passing per game. Derrick Moore was the team's leading rusher with 748 yards on 148 carries, averaging 74.8 yards per game. QB Steve Summers hit 71 of 175 passes for 881 yards and 5 TD's. Julius Pittman hauled in 26 passes for 503 and 3 TD's, and averaged 10.6 yards per return on 27 punt returns. Rodney Glass punted 57 times for a 33.4 yard average, and place kicker Tony Lasseter hit 9 of 20 field goals and 25 of 27 PAT's.

TSU's defense allowed 142.9 yards rushing and 175.3 yards passing per game for the season. Michael Herbert led the defense with 96 tackles, 66 solos. Jimmy Brown led the team in tackles for loss with 14, including a team leading 8.5 sacks. Steve Leach finished the season with four interceptions.

A New Era Begins

Troy State didn't have to search very far to find its new head football coach.

The resignation of Robert Maddox at the end of the 1990 gridiron season spawned rumors that former TSU head coach Chan Gailey or former University of Florida coach Charley Pell would lead the team into NCAA Division I-AA action.

As luck had it, all the University had to do was look 70 miles northward to find a successor to the Coach's throne.

Larry Blakeney, who had served on the Auburn University football staff for 13 years, had all the qualities that the TSU Board of Trustees' Athletic Committee wanted in a head coach. In addition to being named head football coach, Blakeney will serve as assistant athletic director.

Blakeney comes to Troy State with a rich background. In his most recent capacity as the Auburn receivers coach, he helped develop a talented crop of players that includes the likes of Freddy Weygand, Lawyer Tillman and Alexander Wright.

Blakeney compiled a 50-24-2 record in his seven years as a high school head coach at Southern Academy in Greensboro, Walker High School in Jasper and Vestavia Hills of Birmingham.

He also lettered three years as a quarterback and defensive back at Auburn under the watchful eye of Ralph "Shug" Jordan.

After being a part of Pat Dye's three SEC championship teams, Blakeney felt it was time to move on to a head coaching position of his own. Blakeney became interested in the Troy State job after learning of Maddox's resignation.

"I heard rumors and grapevine talk that there might be an opening here," Blakeney said from his new office in Tine Davis Field House. "I had heard that Robert was probably going to resign. I was contacted about the job in the latter stages of November."

Needless to say, Blakeney jumped at the chance to coach the Trojans.

"I wanted to be a head coach again," he said. "The opportunity seemed like one I could sink my teeth into. I didn't really want to coach at the Division II level, but with the University moving up, this one was perfect."

Blakeney may miss the experience of big-time college football and the sweetness of three Sugar Bowl trips that the Auburn Tigers introduced him to, but he sees a good thing developing in Troy.

"There's always uneasiness when you make a change," Blakeney said. "I didn't expect everything to be perfect when I came here. I'm more concerned with the opportunity and the direction that the University is headed."

Troy State's rich athletic tradition and commitment to excellence should carry over, said the new coach.

"They won the NAIA national championship in 1968 and then they won two national titles in the 1980's at the Division II level," Blakeney said. "They can draw from that. In general, Troy State has been a winning athletic program. They're used to winning here. Troy State can have success and can have success this year."

The 1991 football season will not offer a polite introduction to the brand of football played by Division I-AA teams.

Although the Trojans' schedule isn't completely final, Blakeney said his team will face two-time defending I-AA national champion Georgia Southern, as well as Central Florida, Arkansas State, Nicholls State and Western Kentucky.

Blakeney said TSU will retain former Gulf South Conference opponents North Alabama, West Georgia and Valdosta State.

With the combination of a coaching transition and a tough schedule, the Trojans will be in for a test.

TSU Heads For Div. I

Troy State University's Board of Trustees decided during the Summer to seek an address change for its athletic program from Division II to Division I.

The board approved a previously submitted recommendation of a 25 member committee appointed last October to study different areas involved with making such a move.

The committee, headed by board member Dr. Doug Hawkins, a Troy veteran, recommended the move during the board's April 9 meeting. Twenty-three of 25 study committee members voted to go forward with the move, according to Vice Chancellor Doug Patterson.

During the board's June

4, 1990 meeting a unanimous vote cleared the way to begin the move. More than 50 people attended the meeting and greeted the vote with applause.

As the first step of many that will be required to complete the move, Troy State officially announced its resignation from the Gulf South Conference at the organization's June 28-29, 1990 meeting. Troy State officially leaves the GSC in June, 1991.

"This is our last year in the GSC," Trojan Sports Information Director Tom Ensey said. "Then we're looking at a two-year compliance period with Division I rules."

Ensey said during the two-year period Troy State will officially be recognized as a Division II independent. "We'll still be eligible for the Division II playoffs if we maintain Division II scholarship maximums."

Troy State must meet the NCAA's rules on recruiting and eligibility for Division I. After two years of abiding by those rules, petition can be made for membership in Division I.

At the higher level, football would compete at Division I-AA and all other Trojan sports would compete at Division I.

Athletic Director Robert Earl Stewart, after the June meeting, said the athletic department will start planning for the future immediately.

Under Division I rules, Troy State must add two women's sports to bring the number to the required six for women.

During the summer, Troy State graduate and former Trojan assistant coach Max Howell was hired to replace Jim Jackson as director of athletic development and promotions. Jackson left Troy State for a job with Auburn University.

Howell will also serve as a recruiting coordinator and consultant to coaches on NCAA compliance.

Chancellor Jack Hawkins said that Howell has secured $500,000 in pledges since he assumed his duties on August 8. In June, Dr. Doug Hawkins told the Montgomery Advertiser that alumni had raised $439,500, with a commitment to raise $1 million in the next two years.

Board member Hawkins, in an interview with the Tropolitian, estimated that it would cost approximately $100,000 above the university's $1.5 million annual athletic budget to meet the first year of NCAA requirements.

The move, according to Troy State officials, has its advantages. After several years in Division I, the university would become eligible for more revenues based on its ability to get financial guarantees for scheduling, according to Patterson.

In addition, the athletic department would offer more scholarships. For football the number would increase from 40 to 70. For basketball the increase would be from 12 to 15.

Stewart said that for this year there will be no increases in scholarships. NCAA rules state that as long as an athletic program maintains Division II levels on scholarships, while fulfilling rules on recruiting and eligibility, it can compete for Division II titles.

The earliest possible date Troy State could be accepted to Division I is Sept. 1, 1993.

Athletic Trainers

An integral part of the Troy State Athletic Department is the Sports Medicine/Athletic Training Program. The program is a branch of the School of Education and Physical Education, and serves as a support for the University Athletic Department. The curriculum is directed by John Anderson and the clinical is directed by Chuck Ash. Daily functions include the care, prevention, treatment and rehabilitation of the athletic injuries of the TSU athletes. The department also acts as a liaison between 40 area high schools and the University.

Working along side the program directors are one full-time graduate assistant and eight student assistants. They receive hands-on training for jobs in the sports medicine field. Not only do they work at athletic events during the school year, but they are also employed at Health South rehabilitation clinics during the summer.

Sports Information

Troy State's sports information office, located in the Tine-Davis Field House, collects and distributes information on all university athletics. The sports information office provides statistics, photographs, feature materials and publications to regional and national news outlets.

Sports Information Director Tom Ensey and his staff serve as hosts for all TSU home sporting events. They produce athletic department publications, including media guides, weekly releases, game programs and press info packs.

TSU's office of sports information has won 36 national awards for publications excellence, and Ensey has won six awards for writing.

GSC Champions!

The Trojans Win the GSC In Style

They did it.

The Troy State basketball team—a team that was picked to finish no higher than fifth in the league, a team which lost its top two scorers and rebounders from a year ago, a team whose starting lineup averages maybe 6-foot-2—proved, against all odds, this season that it is the best team in the Gulf South Conference.

Playing in its final season as a member of the esteemed and revered GSC, the Troy State Trojans accomplished a goal that had eluded them for 13 long years. And they did it in style.

In the process of building a 22-8 record and earning a championship ring, this team scored more points than any other college basketball team in the nation. Eighteen times this season Troy State scored over the century mark. Four times it scored over 140 points. Troy's 187 points against DeVry Institute was more points than had ever been scored by one team in the history of college basketball.

The mountains of points were, of course, fun, but what made them even more fun were the victories that accompanied them.

Months before the start of this season, Coach Don Maestri made the determination that the only way this team could win would be to run, then run some more, and, finally, run a little more. The other part of Maestri's grand design was that his players must shoot the basketball about every third or fourth stride.

And when system and talent intersect—as they did this year—W's inevitably result.

Troy State won the Gulf South Conference Championship this season because it made opponents play its game. At heart, every basketball player in the country loves the up-and-down game, where shots come at a machine gun pace. But the fact is that no players in the country were as prepared to play this style as Troy State's. Because the pace of most games belonged to Troy State, so does the conference title.

Top: Tony King, Andy Davis and John Harrison celebrate winning the GSC title after the final West Georgia game.

But any coach will tell you that systems don't win championships, players do. And it was Troy State's players, blessed with soft shooting touches and swift legs, who actually went out and physically wore down other teams. And it was these same players who, for months, endured the daily, grueling workouts that made them what is surely the best-conditioned team in the country.

Style is inherent to the run-and-gun offense. But this team showed more than style in its march to a championship. It also showed class.

Teams don't win seven straight games down the stretch without displaying incredible poise and focus. Teams don't sweep both Jax State and North Alabama in the same season without exhibiting confidence and mental toughness. And teams don't go undefeated on their home court without displaying large measures of resolve and pride.

In the future, when people think back on the 1991 Gulf South Conference championships, they will most likely remember the run-and-gun offense and the team's astronomical scoring records, but they will also remember the class and style which made it all possible.

On their way to the championship the Trojans broke records like they were going out of style. TSU set seven NCAA II records (2 ties), 13 GSC records and 13 TSU records. Among them: NCAA II, school and GSC record for most points scored in a single game, 187; NCAA II, school and GSC record for most 3—point FG made and attempted, 44/108; NCAA II, school and GSC record for most points scored in a half, 103; NCAA II, school and GSC record for most rebounds in a game (both teams), 143 (TSU—93/DeVry—50); NCAA II, school and GSC record for most assists in a game (both teams), 69 (TSU—42/DeVry—27); tied NCAA II, and set school and GSC record for most 3—point FG made in a game, 25; and tied NCAA II and set school and GSC record for consecutive 3—point FG made without a miss, 10.

TSU was also awarded three top honors by GSC basketball coaches following the season. Head coach Don Maestri was named GSC "Coach of the Year", senior guard Calvin Aultman was named GSC "Player of the Year", and junior center James Stallworth was selected GSC "Newcomer of the Year".

Point guard Charles McDonald was named to the GSC All-Conference Team along with Aultman. McDonald set a new record at TSU with 234 assists in 30 games. He averaged 10.1 points per game, as well.

Aultman led the league with 19.2 points per game, and hit a new school record 116—of—295 3—pointers (39%). He also set a school season record for steals in a year with 84.

The Trojans, who led all divisions of the NCAA in scoring with 108.6 points per game, were eliminated from the NCAA Division II South Regional tournament by eventual national champions North Alabama.

Promising Season Falls Short

Close, Heartbreaking Losses Decide Season

The Lady Trojans, under Head Coach Joyce Sorrell, began the year with promise, winning close games over Columbus College and Eckerd College before struggling the rest of the season. There were several heartbreaking losses, including a 74-71 defeat at the hands of Mississippi College. One exciting win down the stretch was an 81-80 victory over Tennessee-Martin.

Despite a dismal overall season, several individuals provided bright spots and a reason to look to next season. Sophomore guard Jen nifer Edgar dished out 162 assists to set a new Lady Trojan single season record, breaking the old mark of 152 set by Valerie Privett in 1982.

Junior college transfer Pam Cox picked up the legacy of former All-Star Angie Lowe, leading the Lady Trojans with an 11.4 scoring average and 7.6 rebounds per game. If the fine play of Edgar and Cox continues next season, the Lady Trojans could see better days ahead.

The Collegiate Cheerleader. Traditionally these words bring to mind images of colorful Fall afternoons and spirited coeds adorned in wool letter sweaters and saddle shoes leading an enthusiastic crowd in traditional college yells. However, collegiate cheerleading has changed and Troy State's cheerleaders are at the cutting edge of today's cheerleading world.

Today at American colleges and universities cheerleaders must be, in addition to their primary role of spirit leaders, ambassadors of their institutions, and, in most instances, diversely skilled athletes. Being a Troy State cheerleader now involves regular alumni interaction, public relations exposure, and frequent support of community and institutionally-based development activities. As we move into Division One athletics our cheerleading squad is preparing to compete in it's own right among other Division One universities. The 90-91 cheerleading squad was ranked among the top Division Two squads nationally and received the award for being the Most Collegiate cheerleading squad among all Division Two squads.

Troy State's cheerleaders are ready for Division One athletics and look forward to the challenge ahead as TSU grows and takes it's place in the Division One world.

Bad Luck Ends Trojan Season

The TSU men's tennis team went into the GSC tournament seeded third, but, because of excellent play by Valdosta St., they had to settle for a disappointing tie for fifth place. Valdosta St. defeated the Trojans 5-4 by playing the best match they have played all year. TSU then defeated West Georgia 5-1 and was forced to settle for a tie for fifth place when rain cancelled their final match with the tournament's host team, North Alabama. Head Coach Duane Paxson is now concentrating on the move up to Division I play which will come in 1993. He hopes for a gradual transition so the Trojans will remain competitive.

The Lady Trojan team, also coached by Paxson, was led by freshman sensation Jennifer Walker. Walker, who finished the season with a 12-2 record, was named to the All-Conference team and was named Gulf South Conference Freshman of the Year and Sportsman of the Year. Walker ended the season by traveling to Sacramento, CA and playing in the NCAA Division II national tournament; only 32 women were invited. Amy Cohlmiia of Central State of Oklahoma edged out Walker 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 in a three hour match. As a team, the Lady Trojans finished the season in fourth place in GSC play.

Astounding!

Lady Trojans Win Their Second Straight GSC Title

The Lady Trojans had another outstanding year under the leadership of second year head coach Kim Van Deraa. For the second consecutive year the Lady Trojans won the Gulf South Conference Championship, and finished the season with their best record in the history of TSU's Volleyball Program, 33-6. The Lady Trojans won the title by sweeping the GSC Tournament, which included two convincing wins over top seeded Jacksonville State.

TSU played their most consistent season ever with the exception of one streak during mid-season. From Oct. 26 to Nov. 6 they lost five games, including one to Jacksonville State. After the loss, the Lady Trojans turned things around and didn't lose another game for the remainder of the season. Included in this late season streak was a win over Montevallo. The Lady Trojans had never beaten Montevallo until this season.

TSU had three players make the All-GSC team; Susan Hayden, Jodi Pierce and Heather Whitworth. Pierce and Whitworth were also named to the All-GSC Tournament team. The three graduating seniors are Pierce, Whitworth and Shari LaRue.

Woody Comes Within Three Places of Nationals

Cross Country is a different sport from track in that it is always run on grass, never on a track. Each Cross Country meet is five miles long and there are between 150 and 200 participants from different schools in one single race. The races are run on different terrain which consists of obstacles such as ditches and logs, and sometimes the runners are required to run up mountains and even deal with the police. The runners train on this kind of terrain in order to be competitive at the various meets they attend.

This year's team, coached by John "Doc" Anderson and assisted by Bill Hibbard, was led by Marcus Woody, Dale Sickman and Greg Mann, all of whom were chosen All-Gulf South Conference. Woody and Sickman were also chosen All-South Region. At the South Regional Meet, the top three contenders move on to the national meet. Out of the 150 who participated in the regional meet, Woody finished sixth, Sickman finished tenth, and Mann finished eleventh. Maybe next year the team will be able to attend the national meet.

Final Day Drops Trojans Two Spots

The Troy State golf team battled 90-degree heat, thunderstorms and a difficult course during the NCAA Division II national tournament in Jupiter, FL. In the end, the hot shooting of Florida Southern, Columbus College and Abilene Christian turned out to be the Trojans' toughest nemesis during the four-day event at Cypress Links Country Club. Troy State held the second place spot during the first three days of the tourney behind national champion Florida Southern. However, Columbus College and Abilene Christian surprised TSU on the final day of competition to force the Trojans to settle for a fourth place finish for the second year in a row.

Although the Trojans had their sights set on a fourth NCAA title, Troy State head coach Barney Burnett said the team is pleased with the way the season went. Senior Joe Shahady paced the TSU linksters by finishing in a tie for third in the individual competition. Shahady also received recognition as a first-team All-American for the second consecutive year. Pat Tessmann, another All-American selection, tied for 18th in the tournament. Burnett hopes the Trojans can continue to be mainstays on the national level in the years ahead. TSU will lose Shahady and David Lewis to graduation, but the team should stay strong with several returnees and new recruits.

Late Season Slump Ends Trojan Hopes

Troy State's baseball team ended the 1991 season with two straight losses in the double-elimination South Central Region baseball tournament, missing out on a chance to make its first appearance since 1987 in the NCAA Division II Baseball Championship Tournament in Montgomery, AL. In the first game of the regional tournament, Jacksonville State defeated the Trojans 2-0 in a classic pitcher's duel. Later that afternoon, Delta State sent TSU home with an 11-5 defeat. The Trojans, ranked as high as third in the NCAA Division II poll during the season, ended the year at 34-19 and ranked 14th.

Lefthanded junior pitcher Andy Dolson, of Lakeland, FL., and second baseman Keith Black, a senior from Florence, both earned first-team all region honors. Dolson posted a 2.2 ERA over 86.2 innings, striking out 85 and walking 36 en route to an 8-5 record. Black, a rare four-year starter, hit .325 for his senior year, with 25 RBI, eight homers and 45 runs scored.

The Trojans wound up hitting .312 as a team, led by senior right fielder Jody Singleton, of Newville, AL., who hit .348 for the season with six homers and 40 RBIs. Catcher Joel Smith led the team in homers with 10 and in RBIs with 41. Tracy Lee, who played center and hit from the leadoff slot all year, hit .322 on the season with 45 runs scored, and he stole 35 bases in 42 attempts.

The team posted an ERA of 4.46 for the year. Junior Al Starr, of Auburn, posted a 3.71 ERA with a 5-1 record. Jeff Brown, another junior from Lakeland, FL., finished at 7-4 with a 5.74 ERA.

ELEMENTS OF ADMINISTRATION

Chancellor Hawkins

Jack Hawkins, Jr., Ph.D., is the Chancellor and Chief Executive Officer of The Troy State University System. He also serves as President of the Troy campus. Since his appointment September 1, 1989, he has led a system-wide evaluation and reorganization. These activities resulted in cooperative ventures with other educational and corporate organizations and in internal streamlining within and among campuses of The Troy State System.

The Inauguration of Dr. Hawkins brought education leaders from throughout the state to the campus where the entire community celebrated the anticipation of TSU 2000. TSU 2000, the vision of Troy State University as a educational leader in the 21st century, captures the innovative spirit Dr. Hawkins injects in campus life.

In addition to administrative advancement and educational entrepreneurship, Dr. Hawkins is leading the university's athletic move into Division 1 NCAA competition. Students, alumni, and supporters — all are working to make this dream a reality by 1992.

Adding to the excitement of this year are enrollment increases on each campus each quarter. During Fall 1990 the Troy campus broke the 4000 mark for the first time, and the system enrollment went over 14,000. Dr. Hawkins foresees continued increases as Troy State moves to meet the needs of nontraditional students and to internationalize the campus and curriculum.

Sorrell College of Business

The programs offered by the Sorrell College of Business are designed to promote and entrepreneurial spirit and to develop the skills and leadership qualities needed to succeed in the free enterprise system. Its major and minor degree offerings teach the technical competencies and attitudes of mind necessary to better understand and successfully cope with the rapidly changing domestic and international world of business, industry and government. To facilitate these objectives, a faculty of highly qualified men and women bring to the classroom diversified academic and business experience backgrounds.

The college now offers two tracks for the students to pursue. The first is in the business administration program, which includes majors in accounting, economics, finance, general business, management, marketing and office systems. These majors require the study of quantitative methods, management information systems, basic economics and accounting, business law, finance, marketing, management, production, communications, and organizational and policy analysis.

The second track encompasses the study of computer and information science. The student pursues a course regimen of computer languages, programming, and data base systems. The program emphasizes a "hands on" approach with the utilization of personal computers. In conjunction with computer studies, the student also pursues an academic concentration in either accounting or business administration or a major or double minor of his choosing.

The College of Business also allows the students to pursue the avenues of study. The business education major can be obtained by those interested in teaching business courses at the high school level. An economics major can be obtained by the student preferring a social science emphasis. Minors in business administration, economics and computer information sciences are also available.

School of Education

The School of Education is organized into four departments: education, psychology, health and physical education and human services.

A regional In-Service Education Center, located in McCartha Hall became a part of the School of Education in 1985. Its purpose is to provide in-service education for twenty-two school systems in southeast Alabama.

The current faculty is the best prepared in the history of the School of Education.

All nineteen faculty members in the Departments of Education and Psychology hold doctoral degrees from a total of fourteen universities throughout the United States. The Department of Health and Physical Education has added several faculty members with doctorates during the past four years.

The Department of Education offers undergraduate and graduate programs in early childhood, elementary, special, and secondary/N-12 education. A non-traditional fifth-year program in education was implemented in September, 1985, for persons holding non-education baccalaureate degrees. Teacher education programs offered on the Troy campus are accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the Alabama State Department of Education.

The Department of Psychology offers an undergraduate major and minor in psychology and double majors in psychology and marketing and psychology and management.

In addition to its teacher education programs, the Department of Health and Physical Education offers non-teaching degrees in health and physical education. The Department of Human Services offers undergraduate degrees in rehabilitation, human services and social work. School of Fine Arts

The School of Fine Arts is dedicated to the concept that every person needs the opportunity to experience the arts and culture of our existence. It firmly believes this search for intellectual, emotional and aesthetic satisfaction can help develop objectives and meaning for life.

Created in 1971, the School of Fine Arts encompasses the disciplines of drama, speech, and visual arts. Though a curriculum which encourages performances but recognizes the need for a thorough background in history and theory, students can pursue an avocational experience or prepare for a career in the arts. These opportunities are guided to fruition through the dedicated efforts of faculty artists concerned with the total educational experience.

A wide variety of cultural events are presented by the School throughout the academic year. These include student and faculty exhibits in the visual arts, gridiron performances by the "Sound of the South" marching band, concerts by the Jazz band, Symphony band and Madrigals, operas and musicals performed by the Opera Workshop, student and faculty recitals, intercollegiate debate competitions, children's theatre presented by the Pied Pipers and a broad spectrum of dramatic productions.

Hall School of Journalism

The Hall School of Journalism is the youngest School on the TSU Main Campus with a beginning in 1972, and now has about 200 majors in the two areas of concentration, news-editorial and broadcast.

Modern equipment and facilities for both sequences provide students the opportunity to get "hands on" experience in their respective fields. Broadcast journalism students produce an evening news show on WTSU-TV very similar to that of area professional stations, and a type-setting system with laser printing gives the news-editorial students the feel for working in the profession.

As an additional aid to the students' education, a Chair of Journalism, established in 1980, gives the students another means of contact with those in the profession.

In order to involve students more with the field of journalism, a chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists was established in 1975 and a chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho, the national broadcasting society, was chartered in 1981.

All faculty members in the School of Journalism have experience in the profession, which brings another dimension to the "hands on" approach of the program.

Merrill Bankester, dean since 1980, had eight years in the newspaper profession before getting into college teaching.

Donna Clark, who joined the journalism faculty in the fall of 1990, has worked in the public relations field. She also taught public relations and related courses at Auburn University before coming to Troy State.

Bob Fordan, now in his third year at TSU, had experience in the radio and television industry.

Gordon McKerral, who heads up the print sequence, had 10 years in the newspaper business including being a part owner of a newspaper in Indiana.

One popular extra-curricular activity that the School of Journalism sponsors each spring is a symposium dealing with media problems such as ethics and privacy. Panelists include nationally known personalities who discuss these problems.

Graduate School

Dr. Rudy Argenti
Dean

The first graduate degree was awarded at Troy State University in 1958. the early mission of the Graduate School was to provide programs for the preparation of students in teacher education and to meet the needs of the elementary and secondary schools. The degree of Master of Science in Education was offered in several major areas.

In the 1970's as the need for knowledge and advanced education in specialized and professional fields developed, the Graduate School mission was expanded and the University added several new graduate programs in the arts and sciences, business, counseling and human development, and criminal justice. Educational Specialist degrees were added in 1972 in Counseling and Human Development and in Administration and Supervision. In 1981, Educational Specialist degrees were added in Early Childhood, Elementary, and Secondary Education. The School of Nursing initiated it's Master's degree program in 1982.

Graduate School currently offers fourteen Master's degrees, and is concerned with all aspects of graduate education. It's primary responsibility is the enhancement of graduate programs within the TSU System. the graduate program is administered by the dean in cooperation with the undergraduate deans. Policies and regulations which govern graduate studies are formulated by the Graduate Council.

Graduate Council: Row one; Charlene Schwab, Perry Castelli, Lawrence Mowery, Curtis Porter, and Edward Merkel. Row Two; Rudy Argenti, Stanley Echols, John Whitehouse, G.T. Stewart, William Denison, and Linda Grice.

TSU at Montgomery

Troy State University in Montgomery is an evening institution catering to the working adult student. These students come from all walks of life seeking personal growth and professional enrichment.

From its first offering of a medical technology program in 1957 at St. Margaret's Hospital with five students, TSUM now boasts a student enrollment approaching 3,000.

In Montgomery, Troy State University offers the following degree programs: Associate, Bachelors, Masters and Educational Specialist. Numerous undergraduate programs are offered and a variety of graduate programs with majors in Counseling, Computer Science, Education and Business Administration. Additionally, unique to TSUM is an External Degree in Professional Studies.

In January of 1991, TSUM's new television station, TSU-TV, was activated to transmit television courses to Storer Cablevision, Channel 56 and Montgomery Cablevision, Channel 43. This marked the advent of a new era in TSUM's delivery of television courses for students unable to attend regularly scheduled classes.

Troy State facilities, located in Montgomery, include Whitley Hall, Bartlett Hall and the Davis Theater for the Performing Arts. WTSU-FM, the Southeastern Public Radio network, has a branch office in recently refurbished facilities at Bartlett Hall.

In addition to teaching sites at Whitley Hall and Bartlett Hall, TSUM teaches courses at Maxwell Air Force Base, Gunter Air Forces Base, the Montgomery Police Academy and the Troy State University School of Nursing in Montgomery. Troy State in Montgomery also operates the W. A. Gayle Planetarium in conjunction with the City of Montgomery.

In 1983 Troy State University in Montgomery was independently accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Dothan, Alabama, population approximately 53,000 is located in the southeastern section of Alabama. TSUD is located on U.S. Highway 231, North, approximately 3.5 miles from the Ross Clark Circle.

On the 250-acre TSUD campus are two modern buildings designed in the Williamsburg style of architecture and occupied for the first time in 1990. Named for Wallace D. Malone, Jr., president pro tempore of the Troy State University Board of Trustees, Malone Hall houses the administration, School of Business, computer center, and classrooms. The College of Arts and Sciences, School of Education, Library, and student center occupy Adams Hall, which is named for Dr. Ralph W. Adams, chancellor Emeritus of the Troy State University System.

The academic programs at the Dothan campus are designed for undergraduate students and for graduate students at the master's and sixth-year levels.

TSUD also has a branch campus at Ft. Rucker, Alabama, home of U.S. Army Aviation, located approximately 30 miles Northeast of Dothan.

University College

University College was organized August 1, 1981 as the College of Special Programs. In 1990, after much growth, it became University College. It maintains its primary purpose which is the administration and standardization of all off-campus locations.

Troy State University through the University College has three regional areas: Europe, Pacific and Florida, plus a major teaching site at Ft. Benning. University College's growing program has teaching sites at Columbus AFB, MS; four in New Mexico (Cannon AFB, Holloman AFB, Davis Monthan AFB, and White Sands); two in Arizona (Williams AFB and Luke AFB); two in Virginia

(Norfolk and Ft. Myer); Guantanamo Bay, Cuba; Fallon, NV; Ft. Bragg, NC; Shaw AFB, SC; and New Orleans, LA.

In the Fall of 1990 there were in excess of 5,000 graduate and undergraduate students enrolled.

The University College offers degree programs in Business Administration, Management, Public Administration, Applied Science, International Relations, Personnel Management, Criminal Justice, Education and Counseling and Human Development.

Troy State In Florida

Troy State University in Florida offers associate degrees in Criminal Justice, General Education and Business Administration. The Florida Region also offers Baccalaureate degrees in Applied Science, Business Administration, Computer Science, Criminal Justice, Psychology and Social Sciences. Masters degrees are being offered in Counseling and Human Development, Management, Public Administration and International Relations.

Troy State in Cuba

Troy State University in Guantánamo Bay, Cuba services a community of 7,000 military members, contractors, and dependents as well as international students. The base itself is uniquely located in a communist country. It is surrounded by mine fields, barbed wire fences and waterways. The program has expanded from a small dedicated group of students in a few core classes to 100 students in a variety of courses.

Troy State in Europe

Troy State University in Europe offers three graduate programs to more than 1,000 students living and working at thirty-two U.S. military bases in England, Germany, Greece, Italy, Holland, Portugal, Spain, and Turkey. The Master of Public Administration degree program with almost 800 enrollments per term is the largest graduate program offered outside of the United States. The Master of Science in International Relations and Master of Science in Management degree programs each generate about 280 enrollments per term.

Troy State at Ft. Benning

In 1976 TSU began a resident education center in Columbus, GA with 147 students. In the Fall of 1990 it's enrollment had grown to 1,990. A major factor attributing to the growth of TSUPB is the total commitment of the faculty and staff to meet the ever-changing needs and educational requirements of the unique student body population, with it's wide scope of individual experience and it's broad age differential. To answer these challenges the administration instituted a deferred payment plan, rental textbooks, special course scheduling, the Soldiers Opportunity College Associate Degree and an Alumni Association.

Troy State in the Pacific

The motto, "The sun shall never set on the Troy State Campus", was made true when the U.S. Military contracted with the university to offer graduate education programs in Hawaii, Japan, Okinawa, and Korea. Today TSU is providing quality education program opportunities throughout the Pacific to tens of thousands of U.S. military, civilian employees and dependents. Today hundreds of students are attending this far flung operation with hopes of fulfilling their goals of improving their military performance or entering the education profession.

... and finally ...

From all walks of university life, students come together to form a united whole, with the same basic goals at heart: to get an education and be a success (whatever the definition). The yearbook seeks to showcase this diverse student body under one theme. Whether a married commuter, a swinging sophomore, a hard-core academian, a fun loving fraternity member, or the most average of personalities, may you look back with fondness on your years at TSU.

Putting You First, Alabama

Editor's Note

What a challenge this year has been. And what a feeling of accomplishment when the last of the pages have FINALLY been submitted. As Editor, I have really learned a lot about how people really are and how to work with how they really are. If not for some very special people, the book would never have been finished.

All of the staff members did a great job. Changing companies proved to be a big adjustment, but together we made it. Angie and Kyle, I knew that you could handle your sections and handle them well. Mandy, I'm glad that you could teach Paula all of the miracles that you did in the Student Life section. Jen, Dee, Misti, Mendy, Vince and Sabrena—Great Job!

The Photography Department also deserves praise and recognition. Thanks for all of the times when we call and have you answer a list of questions about pictures. Donald, you're the greatest!

There were also people who, throughout the year, came and typed people names . . . and more people names. They were: Marvin Sexton, Tonya Goodwin and Brian Payne. (Welcome to the staff Tonya!).

Two other people who I would like to especially thank are Lori Brown and Ryan Delfin. Thanks Lori, for coming up with a terrific design for the cover. Ryan, thank you for being there for me and helping me write the copy for the opening pages.

Thanks also to Sports Information who are always a big help. As the 1991-92 Sports Editor, I look forward to working with everyone down there.

A person who has come to mean a great deal to me during the past three years that I have been on the Palladium staff has retired. Jaqueline, I will really miss you as an advisor and as a friend. Thanks for all of the encouragement, support, help with deadlines and dinners at your house. Please come see us. You are always needed.
